New China Hordes Cut Off Allies

First Marine Division Isolated By Furious Attack In The East

By EARNEST HOBRECHT

TOKYO (UP)—Red China suddenly broke off its bloody offensive in northwest Korea today, but new hordes cut off the entire U.S. 1st Marine Division and part of the 7th Infantry Division in a furious new attack farther east.

The 200,000-man Communist Army on the western front broke contact after surrounding the U.S. 2nd Division and hurling the rest of the Allies back from the Chongchon River toward a new defence line 20 to 30 miles above Pyongyang.

An ominous lull settled over the blood-soaked ridges and valleys in the northwest. No one in authority even pretended to know the reason for the slackening of the Communist drive.

Aerial reconnaissance reports of Chinese reinforcements swarming south from Manchuria indicated the Reds may merely be regrouping for fresh attacks.

The Marines and army troops were being supplied by air, and helicopters were flying out their wounded. It was believed they could fight their way out.

Maj.-Gen. Edward M. Almond, commander of the 10th Corps, said the Red besiegers were drawn from elements of eight to 10 Chinese Communist divisions massed in northeast Korea. His estimate of up to 100,000 Chinese in the northeast was just twice that of yesterday.

The lull settled over the blazing front as suddenly as the Communist counter-offensive had hit the Allied line last week-end.

All night and early this morning bitter bayonet and grenade fighting raged in zero weather around the Allied perimeter—and sometimes behind it. But at mid-morning, the enemy broke off contact.

By that time, reports from 8th Army headquarters indicated, most of the 100,000 United Nations troops had fallen back to a new defence line south of Sunchon, 27 miles north of Pyongyang, the former Communist capital, and 20 miles below the Chongchon River.

The U.S. 2nd and 1st Cavalry Divisions fought the rearguard actions that enabled the bulk of their comrades to set up the new Allied line.

The French garrison evacuated the post in the face of Communist rebel advances a few days ago.

R.C.N. Destroyers Off N.E. Korea

TOKYO (AP)—A British army spokesman said today that the Canadian destroyers Sioux, Cayuga and Athabaskan are patrolling the northwest coast of Korea, south and east of the mouth of the Yalu River.

He did not locate the exact patrol area. The ships have been operating farther south of the present area, he said.

Civil Defence Finance Plan Is Explained

REGINA (CP)—National civil defence co-ordinator Maj.-Gen. F. F. Worthington made it clear today that the federal and provincial governments will have to work out the basis for financing a civil defence program.

While he could not discuss specific financial details, Gen. Worthington said the civil defence manual stated provision of equipment over and above normal peacetime requirements would have to be worked out in agreements between the province and Dominion.

Gen. Worthington said that in the United Kingdom, in most cases 75 per cent of the expenditures of civil defence had been paid by the national government, and 25 per cent by the local government.

In Scandinavia, the central government paid two-thirds and the municipality or district one-third. The general said that during the Second World War the Canadian government provided funds on the basis of need.

In British Columbia, for example, a grant of 15 cents per capita was paid west of the Cascades and seven cents east of them.

Social Welfare Minister J. H. Sturdy said the problem of financing would have to be decided in the near future.

Otherwise, he said he did not know how civil defence could be taken as seriously as it should be.

Press Tour At Atomic Project Set

OTTAWA (CP)—Security restrictions at Canada's atomic energy project in Chalk River, Ont., will be relaxed tomorrow to permit members of the parliamentary press gallery to make their first tour of the plant.

Ever since the project was started after the Second World War, newspapermen have been barred for security reasons. A parliamentary committee visited the project two years ago, but newspapermen were not allowed to go along.

Arrangements for the visit to the plant, 125 miles northwest of Ottawa, were made through Trade Minister Howe, who reports to Parliament for the Atomic Energy Control Board and the National Research Council.

The meeting, which will be held at Bukit Serene, Malaya, near Singapore, will also be attended by colonial governors of the area.

Churchill Warns U.N. Against War With China

LONDON (Reuter)—Winston Churchill said today in the House of Commons that "it certainly does not seem in the Russian interest to begin a major struggle now."

Churchill said the United Nations should avoid by every means in their power becoming entangled inevitably in a war with China.

He said he regarded the "fundamental change" in United States policy as the best hope for saving western civilization from "Communist and Russian conquest and control."

Entering debate on foreign affairs, the Conservative leader, who was 76 today, said the danger facing the world was not new.

It had been visible "in all its terrible potential" from the end of the Second World War, when the western armies demobilized, but Russia maintained its military strength.

"On top of this the Russian imperialists, clothed in a new garb, advanced to carry the creed of communism and the authority of the Kremlin forth in every direction until some solid obstacle was reached," he said.

Assembly May Indict Chinese

By TOM OCHILTREE

LAKE SUCCESS (AP)—A Russian veto today was expected to block Security Council action on Korea—and the western powers planned to indict the Chinese Communists within 24 hours in the United Nations General Assembly.

The Assembly has scheduled a plenary session for tomorrow to consider several social items. It thus will be available to take up at once United States charges that the Chinese Communist aggression in Korea gravely threatens the world's peace.

While the Assembly can only recommend, its powers in that direction are limitless. It could urge the 60 member governments to apply economic and diplomatic sanctions against Mao Tse-tung's Peiping regime.

It also could call on the members to rush more men and arms to Gen. MacArthur's hard-pressed United Nations forces in Korea.

Even if it avoided taking such firm steps at this stage of the crisis, the Assembly still could record the majority's condemnation of the Chinese Communists. Warren R. Austin, chief U.S. delegate, appeared to foreshadow such a condemnation Wednesday when he told the Security Council the Chinese Communists have defied two-thirds of the world.

He warned the Communists to take heed lest "all men's hands" be turned against them.

Austin issued this warning Wednesday: "The United Nations will not submit to threats. The United Nations stands against aggression."

(Wednesday's council meeting echoed with charge and counter-charge. South Korea's foreign minister, Ben C. Limb, said the conduct of the Chinese Reds is "insane, immoral and monstrous" and threatens mankind with a cataclysmic disaster.

(Wu Hsiu-chuan, Red Chinese delegate, refused to sit at the council table until after Limb had spoken.)

The man who returned to the Philippines—who restored Seoul to the Republic of Korea is watching and waiting.

MacArthur Confident Of Ultimate U.N. Victory

TOKYO (UP)—A man with a pipe in his hand is slowly pacing back and forth in a sixth floor suite of the Dai Ichi building.

The man is Gen. Douglas MacArthur. He is waiting for new word from the Korean front, where Chinese hordes are hurling themselves against the retreating United Nations forces.

MacArthur walks back and forth, halting now and then to strike a match for his pipe.

No ringing telephone breaks his chain of thought because there is no telephone in his office.

At intervals his aide cautiously opens the door and brings in a stack of papers to the general's desk.

Now and then his chief of staff comes through the door to the east of the large—and usually bare—desk to give the latest report.

Occasionally the general sits down at his desk, his back to the window along the south wall, to read the latest news dispatches. He reads and re-reads those from Lake Success, where the United Nations is meeting.

MacArthur feels that the heavy responsibilities now rests with the diplomats. They must either solve the problem their way or untie his hands so that he can conduct a full military action against the Chinese Reds.

MacArthur said some time ago that the North Koreans could have pushed the U.N. forces out of Korea—if they had not made mistakes.

Will the Chinese Communists make mistakes, too?

Forming Third Pats

OTTAWA (CP)—Formation of a third battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry to bring Canada's special brigade back up to full strength, was formally announced today by Defence Minister Claxton.

The new battalion will be commanded by Lt.-Col. G. Corbould, 42, D.S.O., of New Westminster, and will replace the second battalion now en route to Korea.

The minister's announcement also disclosed that the second battalion no longer will come under command or direction of special brigade, now in training at Fort Lewis, Wash. It will operate with an allotted formation in the Far East, taking direction from army headquarters on administrative matters.

Bank Robber Shot, Captured In Oregon

ONTARIO, Ore. (AP)—Police today shot and captured a Seattle bank robber. They recovered $12,184.78 of the loot.

State Police Sgt. Walter Walker said the man identified himself as Merritt J. McDonald, 23, of Seattle, and said he was the lone gunman who held up a Seattle bank on Monday.

McDonald was taken to Holy Rosary Hospital. His left leg was broken just above the knee by a bullet from City Patrolman Cecil Benidien's pistol.

Walker said he had not gone into detail with McDonald on the robbery. He said he didn't know the name of the bank, but that about $13,000 was taken in the Monday robbery.

It was the Magnolia State Bank at Seattle that was robbed Monday.

McDonald was carrying the money in a suit case, police said.

States Decision Up To MacArthur As Army Head

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman said today active consideration is being given to use of the atomic bomb against the Chinese Communists if that step is necessary.

The President spoke of this possibility at a press conference in which he also expressed continued hope that a third world war can be averted.

Truman also made clear he is strongly backing Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who has been under some criticism chiefly from abroad. The President sharply denounced a complaint by several Republican Senators that State Secretary Acheson had been critical of MacArthur, the United Nations commander.

STRESSES COMMUNISM SPREAD

In a statement, the President said that the Chinese Communist attack, made in great force, may lead to further reverses, but "the forces of the United Nations have no intention of abandoning their mission in Korea."

He said if the Chinese aggression is successful in Korea, "we can expect it to spread through Asia and Europe to this hemisphere," and added:

"We are fighting in Korea for our own national security and survival."

A reporter said there had been criticism that MacArthur exceeded his authority and went beyond the point in Korea he was supposed to go. MacArthur, the President declared, did nothing of the kind.

The President also made clear that the policy against accepting the offer of Nationalist Chinese troops has not changed.

The offer was not accepted, he said, in the hope that such a course would prevent involvement of the world in a third world war. That policy, he said, continues.

He said it still is the policy to keep Formosa neutralized. Formosa is the big island off the China coast where Chiang Kai-shek's Nationalist government set up headquarters when forced by the Communists to flee the China mainland.

Truman said that from the time the North Koreans invaded South Korea, the United States has been doing all it can to avert a third world war. The U.S. is still trying to avert a third world war, he said, and hopes that it can be averted.

Arms Program Of U.S. To Be Speeded

(Acheson Speech Page 7)

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dean Acheson's declaration that the free world must "prepare for the worst" heralds a United States administration drive to speed an even greater arms program both at home and in western Europe.

Officials say that will be the government's initial response to the new global crisis created by Communist China's intervention in the Korean conflict.

The gravity of the crisis was pointed up by Acheson's warning Wednesday night that "no one can guarantee that war will not come."

"We must hope and strive for the best while we prepare for the worst," he said in a speech.

Acheson called for the arms speed-up which appears to be in the making. Declaring that the only test of defence preparations is whether they are adequate to meet the danger the free world faces.

G.I.'S SAY: 'TRIM TREE BY 1953'

NORTHWEST FRONT, KOREA (AP)—American soldiers trudging south from the Chongchon River have lost their hope of "Home by Christmas."

But they still have their sense of humor—and a new slogan.

Just as they sang "Golden Gate by '48" in the Second World War, the soldiers today were cheering each other with:

"We'll trim the tree in '53."

Under The Wire—But Wire Moves

Fearing a 30-day wait for benefits if their premiums were not paid today, these Victorians lined up three abreast outside office of Hospital Insurance office. What they didn't know was that at Parliament Buildings, Lloyd Detwiler, commissioner of hospital service, was announcing 30-day advance payment rule was being waved and people would have until Dec. 31 to pay premiums.

Month Advance Insurance Eliminated

A major change in the payment of hospital insurance premiums was announced at the Legislative Buildings today.

Premium payments no longer are due one month in advance of the benefit period, but are payable on the last day of the current period.

The news, however, came a little late for scores of Victorians who lined up at the Hospital Insurance Office today to make payments which they believed reached the deadline to avoid a 30-day wait for possible benefits.

In making the announcement, Lloyd F. Detwiler, commissioner of the government insurance service, said the change was possible as a result of improved administrative procedure.

Persons who recently received bills now have until Dec. 31 to make payment of initial 1951 premiums.

Mr. Detwiler said he hoped elimination of the 30-day advance payment rule would not mean last-minute rushes on the offices of the service.

"If everyone waits until the last day," he said, "it is going to be difficult to bring everyone's account up-to-date in order that eligibility can be proven when a registrant goes into hospital on the first day of the new period."

Say R.C.M.P. 'Dictatorial'

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver Bar Association has decided to protest what it terms "dictatorial action" by R.C.M.P. in British Columbia.

The group decided at its annual meeting Wednesday night to take representations to R.C.M.P. officials and Attorney-General Gordon Wismer.

The association charged that the "new provincial force is not co-operating with lawyers in accidents and other cases."

Delays in giving out information necessary to lawyers were cited.

Assistant Commissioner A. T. Belcher, head of the R.C.M.P. in British Columbia, said today that he was unaware of dissatisfaction among lawyers in Vancouver in dealings with his men.

HEAVY DEMAND FOR RAW MATERIALS; PRICES HOLD

By JAMES R. NELSON

OTTAWA (BUP)—The government told Canadian farmers today the rearmament program of the western world in 1951 will create heavy demand for all raw materials, but prices may not go much higher.

It said improved dollar reserves in Europe may mean some relaxation in British and continental dollar import controls. At the same time it warned that European nations might have to impose some form of allocation control to guarantee equitable distribution of imported supplies.

The forecast of general world economy in 1951 was made to the federal-provincial farm production conference in a paper prepared by J. F. Booth, chief of the federal agriculture department's economics division. He said demand for all raw materials produced in Canada would be heavy next year.

Form Third Battalion Of Patricia's Regiment

Lt.-Col. G. Corbould Named To

OTTAWA (CP)—Formation of a third battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry to bring Canada's special brigade back up to full strength, was formally announced today by Defence Minister Claxton.

The new battalion will be commanded by Lt.-Col. G. Corbould, 42, D.S.O., of New Westminster, and will replace the second battalion now en route to Korea.

The new battalion is already well along in the process of formation. It will occupy accommodation at Fort Lewis originally slated for use by the 2nd Battalion of the P.P.C.L.I.

Lt.-Col. Corbould has been commanding the 25th reinforcement group at Fort Lewis. He commanded the Westminster Regiment during operations in Italy and Northwest Europe and has a distinguished war record.

Juvenile Faces Murder Charge In Girl's Death

TRAIL, B.C. (CP)—A 15-year-old high school girl was hacked to death with a double-bladed axe Wednesday night in the basement of her home here.

The victim was June Bradshaw, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. C. Bradshaw, who found the body in the cellar shortly after returning from a visit to friends. The blood-stained axe was close to the body.

Early today police arrested a 17-year-old juvenile at his home here. A formal charge of murder was laid when the youth appeared in court. He was remanded for eight days.

An only daughter, June was alone in the house, and had been washing her hair in the kitchen when her parents left.

She had been slashed several times with the axe, and suffered numerous head wounds. Police said she had not been criminally attacked.

The blonde, pretty high school student had turned down a date to stay home and wash her hair.

Truman Says U.N. To Use A-Bomb If Needed

Lull Falls As 4 Units Encircled

By UNITED PRESS

An estimated 100,000 Chinese Communists hit Allied positions in northeast Korea today, as 200,000 other Reds broke off the fierce battle in the northwest, apparently to rest and regroup for new attacks.

The Red drive in the northeast struck simultaneously at the front and the flank of Allied front-line units, encircling the entire U.S. 1st Marine Division and two U.S. army regiments.

On the "northwestern front," the U.S. 2nd Division was at least temporarily encircled, but large-scale fighting virtually ceased as Allied troops fell back to a new defence line 20 to 30 miles above Pyongyang, the liberated capital of Communist Korea.

The encircled American units were being supplied by air, and there seemed no reason to believe they were in serious danger. It was believed they could fight their way out of the Red trap whenever they chose.

The new Chinese attack was directed at American units holding the banks of the strategic Chosin Reservoir. Heavy Red forces hit the Marines on the west bank and 7th Division units on the eastern shore.

At the same time, a Communist flying column of 600 to 1,000 troops swept around the flank to cut the supply routes serving the Marines and the 31st and 32nd Infantry Regiments.

On the northwest front, the 2nd Division was surrounded in the Kunu area, where it earlier had rescued the Turkish brigade from Communist encirclement.

Most of the Allied forces in northwest Korea fell back from the Chongchon River line to new defensive positions south of Sunchon, 27 miles north of Pyongyang and 20 miles below the Chongchon.

Air scouts reported that Chinese reinforcements were swarming south from Manchuria to the northwestern front, and it was believed that the Chinese had broken off the battle in that area to fill the gaps torn in their ranks.

No one knows how many Reds have been killed in the bitter fighting since they attacked Monday, but it seemed certain that their casualties would run into the tens of thousands.

In today's fighting alone, U.S. air and ground forces killed nearly 7,500 Communists.

Stripped Gold From Prisoners

AUGSBURG, Germany (UP)—A German witness testified today that Ilse Koch, "the Beast of Buchenwald," stole gold from living and dead Jews in the infamous death camp.

The witness, former SS Judge Konrad Morgen, told the court trying the fat adulteress on murder charges that more than 10 pounds of gold stripped from Jews entering the camp had disappeared after being handed over to Ilse.

Morgen conducted the Nazi investigation that sent Ilse's camp commandant husband to the gallows for corruption during the war.

He said that Ilse, who has been charged with murder and sexual sadism and who has admitted adultery in the camp, once could put her worldly possessions in a wheelbarrow.

U.N. ASKED TO ORDER CHINESE OUT OF WAR

Britain Backs U.S. Resolution In Council; Assembly Discussion Tomorrow

LAKE SUCCESS (BUP)—Britain aligned itself firmly beside the United States today in urging the United Nations' Security Council to order the Chinese Communist troops out of Korea.

Russia was certain to veto a Security Council resolution ordering Red Chinese troops to quit Korea when it comes up for a vote later today. Ambassador Warren R. Austin, chief U.S. delegate, planned to carry the council into a night session, if necessary—on the "Quit Korea" order to the Peiping government.

The United States is expected to take the issue of Communist China's aggression to the floor of the General Assembly tomorrow.

Washington hopes to take the issue to the veto-free Assembly with the backing of the other 9 members of the Security Council. Only India was considered a doubtful vote. Informal sources said that Indian delegate Sir Benegal Rau had long held instructions to abstain on any vote on the matter, but had asked New Delhi for instructions to support the "Get-out-of-Korea" resolution after Gen. Wu Hsi-chuan's warlike speech on Tuesday.

When it goes before the 60-nation group, it was expected that the issue would be stated in much stronger terms than the current resolution before the Security Council.

The meeting, which will be held at Bukit Serene, Malaya, near Singapore, will also be attended by colonial governors of the area.

U.K. Leaders To Meet Dec. 7

LONDON (CP)—Britain's top diplomatic and military chiefs of the three services in the Far East will meet Dec. 7 to discuss the latest developments in Asia, the foreign office announced today.

The meeting, which will be held at Bukit Serene, Malaya, near Singapore, will also be attended by colonial governors of the area.

No Allied Backdown In Korea Fighting

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Truman said today the United Nations forces will not back down in Korea, and that the atom bomb will be used if necessary to meet the military situation.

(A BUP dispatch from Tokyo said Gen. MacArthur's bomber command is prepared to use the atomic bomb on Communist China within hours after being told to do so. But informed sources in Tokyo say many ground force commanders in Korea doubt that even the A-bomb would stop the Chinese invasion immediately.)

(It was said, however, that a presidential decision to turn A-bombs over to the military for use in Korea could be carried out almost immediately. Civilian Atomic Energy Commission Chairman Gordon Dean has stated that under long-standing arrangements, bombs could be put in the military's hands as soon as ordered.)

Truman's firm stand and mention of the most fearful weapon in the world's history came at a press conference filled to overflowing by 200 reporters.

The President said that whether the bomb was used was up to American military leaders in the field, but that personally he hoped it would not have to be employed.

This appeared on its face to mean the decision on dropping the bomb was one for Gen. Douglas MacArthur, but some two hours after the press conference the White House took pains to make it clear the final answer had not been left up to MacArthur.

DECISION BY PRESIDENT

A White House spokesman, who declined to be named, said Truman's remarks did not mean MacArthur himself can order use of the bomb. He noted that under the law all A-bombs are in custody of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, and that only the President himself can order their use.

Truman was drawn into discussion of the A-bomb by questions from reporters after he had read a statement denouncing the Chinese Communist attacks on U.N. forces in Korea, attributed them to Soviet imperialism, and announced that the U.S. will speed up its mobilization of troops and armaments.

Truman also made it clear he is strongly backing Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who has been under some criticism chiefly from abroad. The President sharply denounced a complaint by several Republican Senators that State Secretary Acheson had been critical of MacArthur, the United Nations commander.

In his statement, the President said the Chinese Communist attack, made in great force, may lead to further reverses, but "the forces of the United Nations have no intention of abandoning their mission in Korea."

He said if the Chinese aggression is successful in Korea, "we can expect it to spread through Asia and Europe to this hemisphere," and added:

"We are fighting in Korea for our own national security and survival."

He said: "We hope that the Chinese will not continue to be forced or deceived into serving the ends of Russian colonial policy in Asia."

There was no direct reference in Truman's prepared statement to the atomic bomb. It was in response to questions that he said active consideration is being given to the use of it. Quickly then, he expressed a devout hope it would not have to be used.

Asked about criticism of MacArthur, growing out of the Chinese Communist invasion across the Manchurian border, the President said there are always people who are for a man when he's winning and who are ready to jump on him when there are setbacks.

Govt. Confirms Freight Rate Boost Of 20%

OTTAWA (CP)—The cabinet has dismissed an appeal by seven provinces against a 20-percent freight-rate increase granted by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Text of an order-in-council rejecting the appeal was issued by the office of Prime Minister St. Laurent.

The provinces, all except Ontario, Quebec and Newfoundland, asked the cabinet June 24 last to eliminate or chop down the $60,000,000-a-year increase or to have the Board of Transport Commissioners order the railways to apply them on a different basis. The railways defended the move.

The appeal was specifically against two price increases of 8 per cent apiece—lumped into one 16-per-cent hike on March 1—and 3.4 per cent awarded last May.

The order-in-council said the appeal also was directed against certain increases in freight rates on coal and coke.

It added that the cabinet had weighed the arguments submitted by both the provinces and the railways and could not find that the provinces had "discharged the onus upon them of proving that the Board of Transport Commissioners erred" in granting the rate increases.

G.I.'S SAY: 'TRIM TREE BY 1953'

NORTHWEST FRONT, KOREA (AP)—American soldiers trudging south from the Chongchon River have lost their hope of "Home by Christmas."

But they still have their sense of humor—and a new slogan.

Just as they sang "Golden Gate by '48" in the Second World War, the soldiers today were cheering each other with:

"We'll trim the tree in '53."

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

SOAPBOX STYLES

IT WILL NO DOUBT be put down as another sign that I was born at least 30 years too soon, but the fact remains that I am allergic to the extreme modernism of the so-called functional type of building and furniture. Gaunt, stark lines and clinical coldness have no appeal for me, no matter how efficient and functional they may be.

So I was comforted to discover that no less an authority than Sir Giles Gilbert Scott, the great British architect who designed the new House of Commons and Liverpool Cathedral, among other works, shares my view, although he may not know it.

CABBY'S COMMENT

HIS ATTITUDE was revealed while in New York a few days ago on his way to Toronto, where he is to supervise the start of a chapel of his own design in the University of Toronto—the first work he has done on this side of the Atlantic, by the way, although he has visited this continent several times.

While in Manhattan, he called a taxi to take him to the United Nations' secretariat building, whereupon the cabby observed: "What, that soapbox?" Sir Giles recalled the incident, with a chuckle, during a subsequent press interview, in which he gave his own views of the building in question. They were: "It's very impressive, it's terrific. But I don't know whether it's architecture."

UNCOMPLETED LANGUAGE

SIR GILES is not as biased as his comment might suggest, as he has adopted modern style for his designs of several power-houses, to which, he claims, it seems suited. But when it comes to United Nations buildings his view is that structures should convey something to the people who see and use them, and that modern design is like an uncompleted language, not any easy means of communication. He thinks it will take another 100 years to evolve.

Of course, that cabby's allusion to the "soapbox" nature of the U.N. building may not have had the same meaning to him as it did to the architect. His "soapbox" sneer may have referred to the overflow of oratory that emanated from the building, rather than to the architectural style, who knows?

ABIDE BY TRADITION

AS ONE WHO feels that the traditional has a charm and meaning lacking in today's designs—whose language I do not understand—I was interested to see that Sir Giles referred to his design of the new British House of Commons as "a far more eloquent style language." That particular assignment, he claimed, was more than a problem of design, it was a problem of psychology. The British people expected him to create an atmosphere that fitted in with the centuries-old traditions and customs of that venerable institution. And he succeeded.

That brings to my mind an item in a London paper some time ago to the effect that he would let no hand but his trace out the original patterns from the rubble that was left of the blitzed House after that fateful night of May 10, 1941. And those designs he put into the hands of his craftsmen to work on.

PRIDE OF CRAFT

WHEN THEIR TASK was completed and the House was ready for its formal reopening, 70-year-old Sir Giles stood in the Lobby and proudly, but at the same time sadly, said:

"We were lucky. We were just in time. Ten or 15 years later we couldn't have done it. For all this work has been done by old men, by old craftsmen who came out of their retirement to do it. Without them we could never have managed to do the job. One of the finest workmen was 85."

TRIUMPH OF AGE

AS ONE WHO has always opposed the practice of forcing men to retire while they are physically and mentally able to make their own particular contribution to our social and economic life, and as one who has often deplored the passing of the old-time craftsman and the arrival of his modern substitute, "jack-of-all-trades-but-master-of-none," that tribute struck me as touching and notable.

For no one but old men would have had the patience, and the skill needed to fashion the splendid, delicate tracery of stone, the lace-like carvings of old English oak—stout as their own hearts. None but old, experienced hands could use tools to work the magic of coining ancient tradition, historic memories, splendor, national pride and fine hopes out of wood and stone. There is a lesson in it for us Canadians, if only we can see it.

Couple now loud in praise of Sarnak for the quick way it relieves long-standing stomach disorders and suffering from rheumatic pain resulting in swollen hands.

How can a home be happy when both husband and wife are in misery and pain—and never feel really well? How can a salesman like Mr. L. R. Gore, Belle River, Ontario, keep up his fine record of sales—under such aggravating circumstances?

No wonder Mr. Gore is now a booster for Sarnak—since it brought relief within 3 days! He writes—

"For many years I suffered from severe pain in my stomach and nothing I took seemed to do me any good. Three days after I started to take Sarnak, I had complete relief from the pain. But even from the first dose of Sarnak my pain began to ease.

"My wife also started Sarnak for her rheumatic pain and swelling of the hands and she is equally loud in her praise of Sarnak for the relief it has given her from this aggravating form of pain."

Thousands Leave Russian Zone, Lecturer Reports

From 30,000 to 50,000 refugees are crossing the border from Germany's Russian zone to the west, Dr. Joyce Hallamore, who spent two months in Germany last summer, said here Wednesday.

"It's all one-way traffic," she said. "You don't find anyone trying to enter the Russian zone."

Chairman of the German department at University of B.C., Dr. Hallamore spoke Wednesday night to the Victoria branch, Canadian Institute of International Affairs.

"Some of these refugees are expelled by the Russians and others are escaping persecution," she said. "Many are sent back but if there is danger of that the refugee stays away from the organized refugee camps and makes his home where he can."

Graduated from U.B.C. in 1925, Dr. Hallamore has been on the faculty since 1928. She studied for her doctorate in Munich in 1932 and 1933, when Hitler came into power.

"Saw him a few times, too," she said.

CONCERT PLEAS

Organ Fine Background For Soloist

AUDREY S.T.D. JOHNSON

The organ proved a useful substitute for an orchestra Wednesday night, giving excellent support to soloist Evelyn Tidbury in a performance of the first movement from Grieg's A Minor Piano Concerto. With Edgar Holloway at the console of the Metropolitan Church organ, this number was a highlight of the program presented by the Victoria Chapter, Royal Conservatory of Music of Toronto Alumni.

The concert was under the auspices of Metropolitan United Church W.A. Groups.

Mrs. Tidbury's playing is appealing through its sensitive phrasing and limpid execution. Ensemble work was featured in the recital. Isabelle Pike, Jean Eilers and Winifred Millburn presented an aria from a Bach Cantata, the combination of soprano with organ accompaniment and violin obligato being most pleasing. Three charming songs by a vocal trio accompanied by Helen Gibson, revealed a nice blend and quality though there was some lack of life.

The singers were Alma Wittick, Eleanor Gray and Beatrice Lasenby. A two-piano quartette consisting of Marjorie Fanshawe, Jean Gilbert, Helen Gibson and Merle Chandler, were well received; especially and most deservedly for Weber's "Invitation to the Dance."

Soloists were Muriel Ritchie who played a delightful group of Scarlatti piano sonatas, well-known soprano Thelma Johns, whose group was headed by the lovely Puccini aria, "Vissi d'arte," and Rachael V. Bogart. Miss Bogart's two scenes from "Saint Joan" and "The Taming of the Shrew" showed her voice and dramatic ability to advantage.

Dorothy Gough was the accompanist for Mrs. Johns.

U.S. Tanker Crew Saved After Ship Wrecked

HALIFAX (CP)—The crew of the U.S. tanker Esso Rochester abandoned ship in the Gulf of St. Lawrence early today, and a rescue craft radioed that the stricken vessel's decks were awash.

Marine radio reported that the Montreal-owned tanker Maruba rescued the stranded crew—believed to number about 40—from the 11,344-ton Rochester and was standing by. No casualties were reported.

The wreck occurred 60 miles northwest of Anticosti Island. Its cause was not definitely known but it was thought here that three-day gales which lashed the area might have crippled the vessel.

Imperial Oil officials said the Rochester, owned by Standard Oil of New Jersey, left Annapolis Bay, Venezuela, Nov. 15 and was scheduled to arrive at Montreal Nov. 24. They said the tanker, well known at this port, may have been diverted in the meantime to Lewisporte, Nfld., supply point for the big Gander Airport.

Takes Long Time For Santa To Visit Navy Families

The "Salty Santa" of the west coast is making plans for his mammoth annual party once again—and this year it will go for three days.

He will be on hand Dec. 19, 20 and 21 for an anticipated 1,500 children of Royal Canadian Navy personnel of the Pacific Command.

On the 19th, more than 400 youngsters of men of the cruiser Ontario will be feted; the following day, 700 kiddies will stand goggle-eyed before Santa at H.M.C.S. Naden's party, and on the 21st, children of men serving aboard the destroyers in the Korean war zone, and those of crew members aboard the frigates Beacon Hill and Antigoni and auxiliary vessels will have their day.

Funds for the affairs are provided out of ships' canteens and by contributions by naval personnel. Under the chairmanship of CPO. Bert Nelson of H.M.C.S. Naden, a number of committees are busily completing arrangements.

Wives of officers and men with children 12 and under, especially those whose husbands are serving in the destroyers Sioux, Athabaskan or Cayuga, or are otherwise absent from the command, are urged to phone B6421 or B1431 and give names and addresses to the party committee.

U.S. Will Speed Arms Production

Civil Defence Finance Plan Is Explained

REGINA (CP)—National civil defence co-ordinator Maj. Gen. F. F. Worthington made it clear today that the federal and provincial governments will have to work out the basis for financing a civil defence program.

While he could not discuss specific financial details, Gen. Worthington said the civil defence manual stated provision of equipment over and above normal peacetime requirements would have to be worked out in agreements between the province and Dominion.

Gen. Worthington said that in the United Kingdom, in most cases 75 per cent of the expenditures of civil defence had been paid by the national government, and 25 per cent by the local government.

In Scandinavia, the central government paid two-thirds and the municipality or district one-third. The general said that during the Second World War the Canadian government provided funds on the basis of need.

In British Columbia, for example, a grant of 15 cents per capita was paid west of the Cascades and seven cents east of them.

Social Welfare Minister J. H. Sturdy said the problem of financing would have to be decided in the near future.

Otherwise, he said he did not know how civil defence could be taken as seriously as it should be.

Must Prepare For Worst, Says Dean Acheson

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dean Acheson's declaration that the free world must "prepare for the worst" heralds a United States administration drive to speed an even greater arms program both at home and in western Europe.

Officials say that will be the government's initial response to the new global crisis created by Communist China's intervention in the Korean conflict.

The gravity of the crisis was pointed up by Acheson's warning Wednesday night that "no one can guarantee that war will not come."

"We must hope and strive for the best while we prepare for the worst," he said in a speech.

Acheson called for the arms speed-up which appears to be in the making. He declared the only test of defence preparations is whether they are adequate to meet the danger the free world faces.

Bank Robber Shot, Captured In Oregon

ONTARIO, Ore. (AP)—Police today shot and captured a Seattle bank robber. They recovered $12,184.78 of the loot.

State Police Sgt. Walter Walker said the man identified himself as Merritt J. McDonald, 23, of Seattle, and said he was the lone gunman who held up a Seattle bank on Monday.

McDonald was taken to Holy Rosary Hospital. His left leg was broken just above the knee by a bullet from City Patrolman Cecil Benning's pistol.

Walker said he had not gone into detail with McDonald on the robbery. He said he didn't know the name of the bank, but that about $13,000 was taken in the Monday robbery.

It was the Magnolia State Bank at Seattle that was robbed Monday.

McDonald was carrying the money in a suit case, police said.

Defeat Is Blow To MacArthur

NEW YORK (CP)—The New Times says today in a Washington dispatch there is no doubt that confidence in Gen. Douglas MacArthur, United States leader in Korea, has been shaken badly as a result of the events of the last few days.

The dispatch says that similarly there is no doubt that United States leadership in the Western world has been damaged by President Truman's acceptance of the bold MacArthur offensive and Truman's rejection of the more cautious British strategy.

The Times also says in a dispatch from headquarters of the Republic of Korea army that collapse of the South Koreans' 2nd Army Corps is attributed to previous loss of trained officers and experienced troops.

French Troops Reoccupy Post

SAIGON, Indo-China (Reuter)—French troops have reoccupied the post of Chuphaisan, near the Chinese frontier in northeast Tonkin, French headquarters announced tonight.

The French garrison evacuated the post in the face of Communist rebel advances a few days ago.

Closer British-U.S. Co-Operation Demand

LONDON (CP)—A wide cross-section of the British press called today for closer consultation between London and Washington on the developing world crisis in Korea.

In general, newspapers supported Foreign Secretary Bevin in his expression of hope that there can be a "political settlement" to avoid a third world war.

But many editorial writers, even those friendly to the Labor government, demanded that Britain make its voice heard in shaping overall strategy.

The pro-Labor Daily Mirror declared: "The ordinary man would like to be assured of one thing. He would like to know that

OTTAWA (CP)—Security restrictions at Canada's atomic energy project in Chalk River, Ont., will be relaxed tomorrow to permit members of the parliamentary press gallery to make their first tour of the plant.

Ever since the project was started after the Second World War, newspapermen have been barred for security reasons. A parliamentary committee visited the project two years ago, but newspapermen were not allowed to go along.

Where Do We Go From Here?

IT MUST BE CLEAR TO EVERYONE that we have suffered a shocking defeat, both military and diplomatic, in Korea. The cruel fact is that the United Nations are on the defensive. Recognizing that fact, we may be better equipped to grapple with the next problem, which is: where do we go from here?

Three courses of action seem possible. First, we could decide to go to war with China. Second, we could attempt to consolidate a fighting line and stall for time while our diplomats work out a political settlement for Korea. Third, we could withdraw from Korea altogether and leave the Communists in full possession.

The first course—to plunge into a flat-out war with China—seems futile. There is objection to it both in Britain and the United States. It does not solve anything, since the heart and core of Communism remain in Russia. It would commit our forces to war on a vast sub-continent, against a virtually limitless supply of men whose life-price quotient is extremely low.

The third possibility—complete withdrawal—would obviously be a devastating blow to the morale of our dependent allies, as well as rejection of the high purpose to which so many thousands have already sacrificed their lives.

The second proposal contains a glimmer of hope, but here again the cards are stacked against us. Does Mao intend to drive the U.N. forces out of Korea? Or is he merely building up a bargaining weapon for the Security Council discussions in the hope of forcing Chinese Communist recognition?

These are monumental issues, calling for master statesmanship. At present we do not seem to be getting it. They talk at Lake Success; they talk in Ottawa; they talk in London; and inevitably they come around to the sombre and dreadful admission that the man who will decide the fate of the world is Josef Stalin.

We think we can detect a mounting indignation and impatience in the United States; a fantastic facing-up and resolve to "get it over with." Senator Brewster has already called for use of the atomic bomb. But would the bomb solve anything? Assuming that we could annihilate millions of men, women and children (and face a mild annihilation ourselves, in the process), and destroy the industries of our enemies, what kind of a world would we inherit?

Could we fashion a Christian society on such desperate procedures?

This is the ultimate question to be decided at Lake Success in the next few days. The Western world will pray that Dean Acheson's "Strategy of Freedom" may point the way to peace. Failing that, we can only pray for time to stand and fight.

Something For Nothing?

AN INTIMATION OF WHAT RESIDENTS in Saanich's old Ward Three and the so-called "panhandle" may expect by merging with Oak Bay is seen in the report of the latter municipality just made public. The statement stresses that "Oak Bay's general policy is to proceed on a 'local improvement' basis as far as it concerns the property owners to be benefited."

It needs no reading between the lines to interpret that as a statement of the hard economic fact that "you only get what you pay for." Cadboro Bay and Gordon Head residents don't need to leave Saanich for good improvements on that basis. And a load of gravel, a section of pipe or a tankload of road oil can be bought no more cheaply under an Oak Bay address than under one in the adjacent municipality of Saanich.

The report points out, too, that a prerequisite of the merger will be a complete re-assessment of all property in the area—carried out by the Oak Bay assessor. It is hardly likely that the present ratepayers of Oak Bay, noted for the dollar-cautious way in which their municipality is run, would feel inclined to deprive themselves of any of their own financial receipts in order to provide the newcomers with such improvements as they may hope to gain.

The prospect is that the "strangers from the north" would be treated like poor relations for a good many years to come. The Oak Bay comment that "during the readjustment period existing services may well be strained," could quite conceivably apply to tempers too.

No Time For Fumbling

GOVERNMENT IN FRANCE, NEVER very firmly entrenched, appears to become particularly shaky in times of international crisis, often from causes quite unrelated to world events. Such a situation has again developed in Paris, just as Korean developments demand careful decisions by regimes which enjoy the full support of the nations they have been elected to lead.

It is to be hoped that the vote of confidence called by Premier Rene Pleven for Friday will result in a restoration of stability in the French cabinet. The leader has stated bluntly that "the Government must know if it can count on its majority."

The origin of the current upset is domestic in character. It involves no disagreement on policy, but rather the repercussions of an "affair" last year in which a secret military report on Indo-China was stolen or sold. There are also elements of black market deals, corruption in high places and mysterious secret agents.

But diverting as these events might be in peacetime—and only the French can properly savor the full political delights of the charges, counter-charges, investigations and intrigues—they are certainly out of place in these critical days. Weakness in the French Government weakens the democratic cause—and we shall need all our strength and unity to weather the coming storm.

No Simple Language To Provide Link Between Two World Blocs

By BRUCE BLOSSAT From New York

THE Russians always say they are for peace. They say it's in the west who are unfriendly and warlike. In spite of our long and futile efforts to engage Russia sincerely in measures for lasting peace, there still are some among us who really believe we have not tried hard enough. For them, the recent experience of O. John Rogge at the "World Peace Conference" in Warsaw may offer some instruction. A former ardent backer of Henry Wallace and the Progressive Party, Rogge until recently clung to the notion the Communist and non-Communist worlds could be reconciled. He bent over backwards to urge the Red viewpoint, and was virtually a hero in the Communist press.

But this time, at a meeting dominated by Reds, he had the temerity to speak some simple truths. He dared to say the United States wasn't guilty of aggression in Korea, and that Communists are using force to impress their ideas on the world.

This was their friend talking, the man who had often defied the folks at home to stand up for the principle of Soviet-American understanding. But from the moment he breathed criticism of the Soviet Union and Communist tactics, he was through.

Now, in a flash, he's just like all the rest of the Americans. He's a tool of Wall Street, a warmonger, an imperialist. To the Kremlin and its pliant hordes, there is only black and white. You're either a complete friend or a complete enemy. Simply because he had the nerve to utter a few incontrovertible facts, all Rogge's past overtures of friendship are forgotten. He has been shoved beyond the pale.

NO REALITY

Does anybody need any better evidence of how unreal the Communists' world is? The unassailable fact is they don't want reality. They don't want friends—for true friends criticize. What they want are lackeys, wholly submissive to their will and their distorted, hothouse view of the world. No man who is anything more than that can have any place in the Soviet scheme.

This deep-seated characteristic of Russian thinking is one of the really great barriers to any accord between East and West. So long as the Soviets dwell in their upside-down land where war is peace and aggression is self-defence, words can't have the same meaning for us as for them. There's no channel through which we can reach the men in the Kremlin.

Chips Off The Old Brock

By DAVID BROCK

THE time has come, my extra-heartsies, to discuss Yule logs. In fact, there is not a moment to lose. About this time of year I begin to worry in case my Yule log will not be dry enough to burn properly, or will be so dry that it will burn too fast, or will be too small or too big. If it is too big, it will send smoke out into the room, and its unpopularity will be only less than mine. Ideally, a Yule log should be of oak, but I find no oaken logs on my beach. The only oak that drifts in is a few oak planks from time to time. I have found a scribbled SOS on my beach, and a dead pig, and a huge bale of black lingerie, and useful ladders and wicker chairs, and almost everything else, but never the trunk of an oak tree. So I use what alder or maple comes to hand. Or, if need be, fir.

ONCE used birch, but it gums the chimney up something horrid and encourages fires. There are quite enough chimney fires at Christmas as it is, what with throwing all the tissue-paper wrappings into the fire at once. On one occasion I even started a festive chimney-fire before Christmas by throwing in all the brown paper off the children's new toys. When the firemen came I had to give them all my Christmas rum, as a bribe to overlook my folly. And the children came down to see why heavy boots and yells were going through the house, and they saw their unwrapped presents at a sort of unrehearsed preview.

Having selected a nice bit of wood, I leave it outdoors so it won't dry out too much. Then in late November or early December I become alarmed and move it indoors so it won't stay too wet. Then I start measuring it dubiously, to see if its diameter will throw smoke at us, but this is a foolish precaution, for our fireplace never smokes the same way twice.

THE time to burn your log is on Christmas Eve, not Christmas Day. It should burn all night, for if there is some life in it when you rise next morning, your family is said to be in luck for a whole year to come. I find this makes me stay up far too late before igniting the wretched thing, and get up far too early the next morning. But the loss of a little sleep is a small price to pay for luck. Nor is my loss of sleep caused by whooping it up on Christmas Eve as is the modern custom. Nor do I stay in bed sick on Christmas morning, as I have seen some of my friends and neighbors do. So the Yule log is not wholly a nuisance at that.

IT IS ALSO a pleasing custom. And there are not enough customs at Christmas these days, not by a long way. I am not referring to customs duty, which still does exist at Christmas, though not so oppressively here as in the U.S.A. Anyone who has ever had to spend Christmas in the States will recall paying duty even on family photographs. I do not know about the duty on Yule logs. I do not send them away. One a year for myself is enough to worry about.

I did give one to a friend once. His wife has barely spoken to me since. First it smoked the room black. Then my friend bore it through the room, it burning and he cursing and his wife nagging, and it dropped sparks on any rug it could bomb, and it burnt his hands and blinded him with smoke, and he hurled it with a horrible oath onto his driveway, and I think it is there yet as a nasty reminder of me.

DUST AND ASHES

ACCORDING to Newsweek, the Americans spend more on funerals than on hospital bills—about $700 millions to $500 millions. People liking costly funerals as much as they do, I can quite believe that they spend more on them than on necessities. But a $500 million hospital bill for 150 million people seems mighty low. Less than $4 each? Tell that to our B.C. system!

There was another interesting item in this article. It is said that a solid bronze casket costs $15,000. (I presume it is not literally solid, but hollow, so as to contain one complete set of earthly remains plus trimmings.) That seems like a pretty steep price for bronze, which is made out of nothing but copper and tin, with sometimes a little lead and zinc added.

AT THAT price, the thing must weigh several tons and be personally sculptured by the great Epstein himself. Which I somehow doubt. But funeral arithmetic was always tricky. You work it out like this: grief plus hurry plus ostentation plus custom plus salesmanship plus raw materials equal about ten times what you expected. I do not mean to say that there are not honest undertakers. There are, many of them in each city.

I knew one so honest that when asked his profession he would say simply, "I am a planter, sir." Though sometimes he used the older form and said, "I follow the medical profession." But I do very much mean to say that even the most honest of planters has a lot of very credulous customers.

MISPRINTS

EVERY MAN who ever printed anything has been the victim of an occasional misprint. This is not the printer's fault and it isn't the writer's fault and it isn't the proof-reader's fault. These things just happen. The other day I was chided for a printer's error which was imputed to my own ignorance. The only reply I could think of was "Those who know what I am talking about will still know. And those who don't wouldn't know anyway. So does it really matter?"

A New Set Of Rules

As Our Readers See It

TWO VIEWS . . .

With reference to the letters of "Veritas" and of Ethel M. Blackwood which appeared in your issues of Nov. 15 and 24, in support of the idea of Spiritualism, and survival after death; and of "religion of creation"; may I point out that there is no evidence of creation. In fact everything clearly indicates that no form of life known to us does not carry evidence of evolution or of having developed from earlier and lower life forms.

It is very clear that to imagine the existence of "Spirit" not composed of matter is to conceive of "nothing" having the ability to rattle a table and be photographed, to suffer and to enjoy; to understand and to be understood. This belief of course is quite beyond the limits of reason.

L. J. PEPPER.

4010 Grange Rd.

. . . ON VERITAS

According to your correspondent Mrs. (or Miss) E. M. Blackwood in her letter in your paper of the 24th instant, anyone not believing in Spiritualism is a "back number," hence, anyone who is a "one-book-man" must of necessity "be still groping in the Middle Ages." Whatever "Veritas" may, or may not have said, God's Word condemns most severely all who dabble in the un-revealed things which an All-Wise God has a good reason for keeping from His creatures.

It is this general disobedience to God's laws which has brought this world in the chaotic condition it is in, now worse than ever!

PROPHECY

A millennium of peace—yes, thank God—and very soon, too.

But No—a thousand times No—not a Red rule—the Bible states otherwise. In 1886 Dr. Gratten Guinness published a book on Bible Prophecy and Chronology which caused quite a stir at the time. In it he said that intensive study of the Book of Daniel—written roughly between 2,000 and 3,000 years ago—had led him to believe that Jerusalem would be freed from the Turk in 1917 A.D. Was it? The Prophet Hagai gave the day of the month—Dec. 9, Isaiah gave the manner "As by birds flying" (his description of his vision of airplanes over Jerusalem). Why was not the world awed and awakened when this took place?

Well, the same God that gave the above prophecies also said that Gog—Chief Prince of Rosh (Russia), Meshech (the old name for Moscow which is to be seen today over the railway station at Moscow) and Tubal (Tobolsk) should be destroyed—see Ezekiel, 38th and 39th chapters.

No modern "prophet" can undo the prophecies of God. It would do us all good to study God's plan for this world a little more than we do, instead of wasting time over H. G. Wells and other atheists who seem to be more popular.

TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

During the past three weeks several persons have lost their lives. We leave it to the law enforcement authorities to fix the responsibilities on persons involved. Accidents will always happen, due to one cause or another.

But it is to be noted that most of these accidents happen on our dark roads and streets. It would appear that our street lighting system plays a great part in these accidents. The system leaves much to be desired, especially on the highways leading to and from our city. Street lights are few and far between, right to the city limits.

Are we being penny wise and pound foolish? It should be a source of civic pride for our city council and its street lighting department to make our city safe for its people to cross the road with a certain margin of safety.

It must be noted on Quadra St. the centre lights are almost useless. There's a light spot on the road, but its outer rim throws dark shadows and kills the headlights of the approaching car.

Let's be fair to all concerned and not jump to conclusions that it's always drink, etc. that causes these accidents.

EDW. TOWNSEND.

HIGH COST OF LOOKING

I've got a beef against the way they are running things at the Memorial Arena. I bought $3 tickets for the wife and myself to see the Ice Cycles. I wanted to take along the two kids, aged 2½ and 4. Plan was to have them sit on our knees because we couldn't afford to lay out any more money.

At the ticket office they said "it's $1.50 for each child no matter if they do sit on your knees." If they were going to take up seats I could understand the charge but think it is unfair when the four of us were only going to use two seats. The kids won't be able to go now.

ON THE AIR

Among the weird and wonderful items that came over the radio last Sunday was an announcement carried on a weather bulletin from a Vancouver station, which broadcast the glad tidings that—warm California air is now moving into B.C.

We should all be grateful to the Californians who have so kindly warmed the air before sending it along to us, and allowing us to breathe it, fill tires, blow bubbles, and to use it to send radio messages.

Maybe the CBC will some time put on an "Actuality Broadcast" in order to demonstrate to listeners just when and where this California air is warmed, how it is labelled, kept free from adulteration with other common air, and the method used to convey this precious commodity straight to B.C. It is just possible that weather-wise listeners would like to be assured that they are really receiving warm air from California, and not hot air from the CBC.

JOHN DEAN PARK

The Chamber has instructed me to forward you the enclosed copies of correspondence re proposed road to John Dean Provincial Park east lookout.

M. O. GOODMANSON, Secretary, Saanich Chamber of Commerce.

(To Chief Forester, Victoria, from Saanich Chamber of Commerce.)

The Chamber has instructed me to write you as to what course of action to adopt towards the project of securing the building of a road to the east lookout of John Dean National Park. This is one of the finest scenic spots in the province and the Chamber feels that such a road would make this lookout a very decided tourist attraction for the peninsula.

(Reply, from E. G. Oldham, Forester.)

We have to advise that the matter of constructing a road to the east lookout has been given consideration from time to time and we have always found that it would detract from the natural beauty of the park rather than add to it.

We also feel that many people enjoy the walk and if cars are afforded passage to the lookout we feel that the area would gradually become an over-used park and thus lose most of its park value.

Travel Diary

Another in a Series

By I. NORMAN SMITH
Associate Editor of The Ottawa Journal

BOMBAY, India—Having gone to a burning ghat in New Delhi to see how the Hindus dispose of their dead on a bonfire, I went today to the Towers of Silence where the Parsees give over their mortal remains to vultures. There are about 100,000 Parsees left in the world, 80,000 in India and 20,000 in Bombay. They came from Persia in the eighth century to escape Islam persecution. They are known as a remarkably astute and shrewd community, having won to the highest business places in the land. Parsees worship fire, water, earth and the sun. Thus they would not bury their dead as that would defile the earth; neither will they burn them for that would defile fire. When a Parsee dies he is carried on an iron stretcher from his home, in plain white raiment, to a Tower of Silence. This is on a high hill. The relatives and friends may follow.

The Tower of Silence is like a circular room, 15 feet high without ceiling. It is 100 feet across and has niches on its stone floor to place 100 bodies. Men, women and children are kept a few feet from each other.

MOUERNERS WAIT

Mourners may not accompany the body on the stretcher nearer the tower than 150 feet. The bearers place the body in the stone floor, undress it and walk out. There may be half a dozen bodies placed in the tower each morning and each afternoon.

When the last body is undressed and laid out the attendants leave the tower and a dark cloud of circling vultures that have been hovering overhead descend to eat the remains. There is nothing left of the bodies but bones within half an hour.

The bones are allowed to sit in the sun for a few days then are brushed down into a central pit in the tower. There they become a kind of powder under the heat of the sun until the rains come in the Monsoon season. Then they are washed away down a drain through a mixture of sand and charcoal which purifies the bones so that they do not defile the earth into which the water finally runs.

NO SOUND

A Parsee showed me around this Tower of Silence, so-called because no one is there to speak and there is no sound. He explained the custom with dignity but commonplace manner. There were 300 vultures, he said, and they knew the feeding times by habit. About 7.30 in the morning and 5 at night. It was not quite time while I was there, for non-Parsees are not allowed in the sacred park surrounding the Towers during feeding time.

"But there are some on that tree, waiting for their meal," he said, quite detachedly, pointing to some vultures, "and there are some more overhead. There will be more when the time comes; they spend the intervening hours over at the stockyards."

The vultures are birds about two and a half feet in height with a wingspread of about five feet. They are ugly things, with hunched shoulders and long necks and beaks. "It is the cheapest and most sanitary form of disposing of the dead," said the Parsee.

If you want to make money, you've got to go into the money-making business. You can't make money and do something else too.—Bernard Baruch.

Ups And Downs

By BRIAN A. TOBIN

"THERE doesn't seem to be time these days," said the Elevator Man, "to loiter back and think things out. Everybody wants action. The thinkers are in the way. And that, according to a lot of experts, is what's wrong with us. A fellow in Boston blames it all on the fact that we've done away with rocking chairs, and maybe he's got something there. Rocking chairs gave you a chance to think and exercise at the same time. Quick active thoughts—slow contemplation—slow motion on the rockers."

For a creature that only came out of the trees a few thousand generations ago it was the ideal type of seat. It was solid on the ground yet swayed like a branch. And it was the nearest approach to the comfort of cradles ever invented for adults. Going up!

"But where," said the Elevator Man, "can you find a rocking chair today? In the old home that still has a grand-mother who can assert her rights, in an attic here and there where it's been overlooked by the junkmen, on the porches of summer resorts where a rest is still figured to be part of a vacation. There aren't many left. And office swivel chairs are a poor substitute. It's just not an age for 'a-settin' and a-thinkin', and sometimes only a-settin'." Going down!

"Put rocking chairs," said the Elevator Man, "in the Security Council, and you might change the world overnight. Who could ever scream 'dirty war-monger capitalist' from the depths of an old-fashioned rocker and make it sound like he meant it? Put them in the Kremlin. Who could plot world conquest rocking lazily back and forth with his hands in his lap? It's hardly true 'any more' that 'the hand that rocks the cradle rules the world.' But the foot that rocks a rocker still enjoys it."

Stiffer Penalties Asked To Curb Drunk Driving

Canadian Temperance Federation Suggests New Criminal Code Clauses

OTTAWA (CP)—Amendment of the Criminal Code to provide for drinking drivers was asked in a 2,500-word brief presented today to Prime Minister St. Laurent by the Canadian Temperance Federation.

Rev. Bryce, 71, Church Leader, Succumbs

TORONTO (CP)—Very Rev. Peter Bryce, a former Moderator of the United Church of Canada and a leader in social service work, died at his home here Wednesday night.

He would have been 72 Dec. 31, and until a recent illness had been active as minister of Toronto's Metropolitan United Church.

A kindly man who never lost his Scottish accent, even though it now is 47 years since he left his native Blantyre, he was one of Canada's best-known clergymen. During his two years as Moderator it was his custom to visit congregations in little towns and hamlets who rarely saw a high church officer.

Specifically the brief suggested provision for scientific tests of the amount of alcohol in the blood stream of anyone involved in a highway accident. In order to convict a driver of driving under the influence of alcohol, it should not be necessary to prove he was drunk or intoxicated in the ordinary sense of the term.

"If it can be shown that his driving ability was impaired to any degree by the alcohol, he should be convicted," said the brief.

It deplored the "slaughter" of 2,275 Canadians last year in highway accidents and blamed liquor in 25 to 80 per cent of these accidents.

The brief again demanded a Royal Commission to investigate Canada's liquor problem and said drunkenness or being under the influence should not serve as a defence of a crime.

BELFAST (AP)—The Ulster Unionist Party, allied with the Conservatives, retained the Belfast seat in the House of Commons in a by-election result announced today.

Mayor Says Province Should Share Cost Of New Firehall

Mayor Percy George, officiating at the opening of the new James Bay Fire Hall at Oswego and Superior, said Wednesday the provincial government should take a share of the cost of maintaining the station. Hundred people were present.

Noting the provincial government in recent years had provided many, large wood-frame office buildings on Superior and Michigan Streets, the mayor contended the province owed not only a debt of gratitude but a financial debt to the city for the fire protection being provided.

Ald. Frank Mulliner, chairman of city fire wardens, observed that "at long last we've got a fire hall for neglected James Bay."

Fire Chief Robert Brindle observed it was the first new fire hall opened for the department in 39 years.

Plant Classification Starts Controversy

By HILDA BEASTALL

The telephone started ringing at 6 p.m. on Monday, and since then phone calls and letters have been the order of the day.

And you are all correct. The Crassula arborescens, also known as the Chinese jade tree, is not the wax plant (Hoya carnosa), and most definitely not the rubber plant (Ficus elastica).

Among the elite in pot-plant circles it is considered almost unpardonable to refer to this Crassula as a rubber plant, a fact many of you appreciate, judging from your remarks.

I think there was a little sarcasm behind my statement that "some know it as . . . a wax plant, or even some kind of a rubber plant," but speech inflections don't show up in print.

There was, however, one redeeming feature about the mistake. It made it possible for me to converse with many of my readers, and resulted in a goodly list of suggestions for future discussions.

Unfortunately, it will be impossible to send personal answers to all who wrote, but their letters are no less appreciated, and the requests answered in due course.

Jack, the veteran columnist (?), has been kidding me plenty. He says, "Maybe after this you will quit intimating and say what you mean. In future, when you write about a spade, call it a spade, or folks may think you mean a hoe."

To which I meekly reply, "Yes, my lord."

Worthington, will discuss Canada's civil defence program at a meeting, sponsored by Women's Canadian Club, in Victoria High School at 8 Wednesday night. In the afternoon at 12:15 Maj. Gen. Interest in general's visit has been aroused by uncertainties of Korean war and steps are being taken to rebuild a civil defence organization in this area.

Ottawa Calls On Cities To Speed Civil Defence

Declares At Least 2 Per Cent Of Population Should Be Ready For Action

OTTAWA (CP)—The defence department said today Canada's major cities should get ready to be able to throw 2 per cent of their population into an organized, directed effort to save lives and property if enemy attack comes.

For cities the size of Montreal that would be between 15,000 and 20,000 persons.

The department, in its booklet on organization for civil defence for distribution to provincial and municipal authorities, says the time has come for Canadian communities of 10,000 and up to organize and that large-scale organization should be launched by a score of areas that offer "vital targets."

For the first time in Canada, it gathers together information about the threats of attack and the type of organization that might be established to meet them. Its advice is not compulsory. The provinces and cities can take it or leave it, but in one form or another a lot of it already is being implemented.

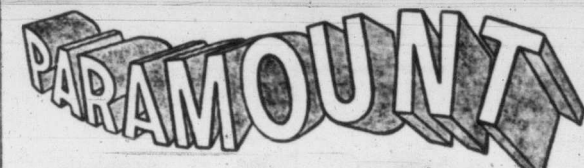

The manual says civil defence has a variety of stages. The government indicates official belief that Russia is stockpiling atomic bombs, and tells Canadian communities of 10,000 or more that they should start organizing to meet disaster. However: "At the present time no potential enemy is believed to have the aircraft or a stock pile of atomic bombs sufficient

Flat Rate Phone Service Proposed For Large Metropolitan Area

If present proposals are accepted, telephone toll charges will be eliminated between Victoria, Albion, Belmont and Colquitz exchanges. In place of the present system of inter-exchange charges, all telephone subscribers in the flat rate area will pay the Victoria telephone rates.

As the Victoria exchange is already dial-operated and plans have been announced for the conversion of Albion, Belmont and Colquitz to automatic (dial) operation, fulfillment of the present proposals would mean complete automatic telephone service and free calling throughout the large metropolitan area served by the four exchanges.

What Flat Rate Service Would Mean To You

Here is the telephone picture, if and when the flat rate plan comes into effect:

As all telephones in the four exchanges would then be dial-operated, the flat rate plan would enable a call to be placed swiftly between any two telephones in the metropolitan area, without the intervention of an operator.

But if the present system of inter-exchange tolls is retained, any call from one exchange to another would have to be given to an operator, who would make out a ticket and then dial the called number. Obviously, this would result in slower service and more chance of error.

Victoria now has 31,830 telephones; Albion has 746; Belmont, 804; Colquitz, 1,161. So, based on present figures, the free calling area would embrace 34,541 telephones, and the total would probably be greatly increased by the time the plan came into effect.

What You Would Pay

As under the flat rate plan, Albion, Belmont and Colquitz subscribers would have free access to the same number of telephones as Victoria has, they would pay the same rate as the Victoria subscribers.

Therefore, the Company is now mailing ballots to Albion, Belmont and Colquitz subscribers, asking them to indicate whether they favor the present arrangement or the new proposal which would eliminate inter-exchange tolls.

How Soon Can The Change Be Made?

If the flat rate plan were put into force the volume of calling would increase greatly. This traffic could not be handled by the existing facilities. Therefore if the flat rate plan were endorsed, the change could not be made until conversion to automatic operation of the Albion, Belmont and Colquitz exchanges, approximately two years from now.

COLEMAN'S COLUMN

By JIM COLEMAN

(WRITTEN IN WINNIPEG)—The flood wasn't too much for Andy Robinson. Andy has lived around the racetracks all his life and, at the age of 82, little things such as floods, famine, pestilence and death have lost their impact. This flood was different, though—cold, vicious and utterly devastating. It swept smoothly and mercilessly across the countryside and even a wiry old man such as Andy Robinson couldn't expect to survive alone.

Coleman

Before you hear of The Flood, you should know something of Andy Robinson who, if he couldn't beat The Flood, at least retreated with dignity and honor to fight another day. Andy is a symbol—a symbol of the best things in the business of breeding, raising and racing horses. Andy has known horses ever since he was born in Alisa Craig, Ontario. He has the instinctive gentleness of men who have spent their lives with horses and respect them. Andy knows The River as well as he knows the back of his gnarled hands. He went to Winnipeg in 1896. As far back as 1902, he had trained Loughderg which won the $2,500 autumn stake at Winnipeg, beating Moses by a lip after they had fought it out over nine heart-breaking furlongs. He owned probably the best of western-breds, a rugged old gelding named Madgu Don which had the same equable temperament as his owner. In the west, they'll tell you that when another man claimed Madgu Don from Andy, the distraught old horse ran away and committed suicide by crashing, head-on, into a truck.

He Returned With His Memories

It was inevitable that Andy Robinson should return to The River when his racing days were over. Jim Speers built him a little private apartment in the winter-barn at Whittier Park, just where The River elbows between St. Boniface and Winnipeg.

When old Andy moved back to spend the remainder of his life beside The River, Whittier Park had lost its glory. The once immaculate lawns were matted and tangled. The grandstand was an empty shell; the windows of the clubhouse were boarded and the jocks' room echoed only to the clatter of forgotten ghosts.

But, in the winter, there was life in the barns. As Andy lay in bed at night, listening to the steady ticking of the clock, he could hear the yearlings stirring in their stalls, restlessly awaiting their destiny. The winters went swiftly for Andy and the summers lingered as The River quietly swept past the door.

The first morning that Andy saw The River creeping over the fence at the lower eastern end of Whittier Park, he called to a couple of swipes and told them to get the horses ready for the van. He went into his apartment and telephoned for the van and then he sat down and took a long look around his little home. Looking at him from the pictures on the wall were Madgu Don and his champions from the past.

It Wasn't Easy For Andy

They moved the horses that night and Andy sat down with a small bottle of cough medicine and listened to the flood reports on the radio. The military commander of the district was ordering the immediate evacuation of every person from the zone. Andy simply turned off the radio and went to sleep.

The River surrounded him, under cover of darkness. It slithered under his door. Even then, Andy wasn't going to leave but Harry Jeffries, the van-man came down from the high railway-grade to evacuate him. Andy went out of there, through the deep water, but he went under his own power.

At the top of the railway-grade, he looked back. At the age of 82, it isn't easy for a man to leave his only home. By that night, The River was up to the roofs of the barns. The nervous searchlights that swept the ominously silent waters that night picked out only the gaunt frame of the upper grandstand in that wilderness.

It ended, of course. Eventually, The River's outburst of violence was exhausted and the waters relaxed. Andy watched the waters recede, inch by inch, foot by foot and, as The River vacated his little apartment, he walked back into it. Old Madgu Don looked down at him reassuringly—the picture had been mere inches above the water-line.

Andy hitched up his radio, cleared up the mess and checked off the calendar as he prepared to wait for the winter when the horses would return to Whittier. Lonely, you might ask? How can a man be lonely with his memories?

A Symbol Of Indomitability

He was there alone on the night that The Big Wind came perilously close to completing the damage caused by The River. It was the greatest cyclone in 35 years and Andy sat there alone in gloomy Whittier Park while the lightning struck wickedly and the thunder rocketed crazily down the jagged streaks of flame. The back wall was ripped from the grandstand and the squat barns shuddered and moaned like human beings.

In the morning, old Andy went out to survey the damage. There isn't much left of Whittier Park, now. The jocks' room is gone. The grandstand is crumbling. The barns are desperately in need of paint.

Andy is a symbol, we said—a symbol of human indomitability in a small corner of the world where steel and wood and stone have succumbed to the battering of the elements.

The horses moved back into Whittier a few weeks ago. When Andy shuts off his radio and flips the light switch he can hear the horses pawing and the barn is warm with life. He sleeps well these nights.

Viduals In Third Cage Test Here On Saturday

Victoria Individuals senior A men's basketball squad will see action Saturday night against the Seattle Federal Old-Line Insurance sextette at the Badminton Hall.

The Washington team, which plays in the same league as Seattle Alpine Dairy, will be making its first appearance in Victoria. In three times out, the Insurance men have impressed Seattle fans with their early-season form.

Manager Don Woodhouse of Individuals, in bringing in the new Seattle team, is looking forward to a keen tussle. It will be the third test of the Victoria squad, which lost, 36 to 30 in their opener with Alpines and won, 35 to 34, against Alberni last Saturday.

Under discussion this week is the revival of the popular Kinsmen Basketball Tournament, once a standout feature of the Victoria basketball season. The tourney, if held, will probably be set for late January or early February.

Alpine Dairy currently holds the Kinsmen Cup. Plans at the moment are for a two-night series, with Vancouver Clover Leafs, Alberni Athletics, Alpine and Victoria Individuals competing.

A six-team series is possible if the university squad, U.B.C. Thunderbirds and another Washington team can find a hole in their regular schedule. ### Getting Away On The Four-Mile Invitational

The Nelles Cup for the annual Royal Roads cross-country race brought out 44 school runners yesterday. Cadets, who placed four men in the first six positions, won handily. Victoria High was in second place, with St. George's of Vancouver placing third. This year's race was lengthened to four miles to provide a better finish. Missing from the starting ranks, for the first time in several years, were Oak Bay High School, the Navy team, and old man rain.

Soccer Dying Slow Death Report Fans

Protest Canceling Of Game; To Form United Boosters

John McGrath and Sam McGuire, two highly irate soccer fans, will have the unqualified support of Victoria United officials in forming a soccer booster club.

A promise to that effect was made last night when a meeting of United directors was thrown open to a delegation protesting the cancellation of Saturday's exhibition game between United and Duncan Native Sons.

The perennial complaint of game cancellations by Parks Board officials received a thorough airing. In a closed session prior to the open meeting, Alderman Frank Mulliner had reported that the turf on the playing pitch was too thin for play after heavy rains.

When this was later communicated to the fan delegates and representatives from the Victoria and District Football Association, John McGrath replied for the fans that soccer was dying a slow death through an irregular schedule and cancellations.

NEW SITES

A separate site was suggested by United president Tom McGimpsey. Two possible locations had been offered: The old Spencer property on Ryan Street and land adjoining the backyard on Topaz. As the field is not level, and has a solid rock base, the Spencer property was ruled out.

A joint delegation from the United, V.D.F.A. fans, and the Vancouver Island Junior and Juvenile Football Association will try to secure a meeting with the Parks Board in the near future to deal with the question of a park.

GIVE SUPPORT

In concluding the meeting, United directors offered support for the suggested soccer booster club, undertook to supply balls to needy teams in the junior and juvenile soccer ranks, and to take up with the Coast League executive the question of cheaper admissions for young soccer players.

Cougar Boosters Set For Seattle

Cougar Boosters will be along in force when the Victoria team invades Seattle Sunday.

Booster president Larry Randt said today that the minimum quota was filled soon after the trip was announced. He will be glad to hear from late comers who want to go along. Expenses are being kept low and the fans will leave here Sunday morning at 10 and arrive home Monday morning at 8.

But the thing he wanted most—a "free hand" from club owner Fred M. Saigh—was not forthcoming. It was made obvious that while Marion, the Redbirds' star shortstop for the past 11 seasons, will be in charge of the club on the field, Saigh will continue to really run the show from the front office.

Youth Finds Evidence Of Giant Sloth

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A 14 year-old boy who prefers hunting fossils to playing baseball has found the bones of a huge animal that roamed South Jersey 100,000 years ago, the Academy of Natural Sciences has disclosed.

The boy is James Ruhle of Moorestown, N.J., a suburban community across the Delaware River, 10 miles from Philadelphia.

The animal whose remains he found was a ground sloth, says Dr. Horace G. Richards, the academy's associate curator of geology and paleontology.

Richards said the discovery, of parts of the backbone, is the first proof this great bear-like animal, 15 feet long, once roamed the South Jersey marshes. Similar finds have been previously reported in what now is West Virginia and in Pennsylvania.

The ground sloth, long since became extinct. Its closest surviving relative is the curious animal called a sloth now found in South America and best known for its trick of hanging upside-down from a tree limb.

Newfoundlanders Bag 485 Whales

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A harvest of 485 whales was reaped in the waters off Newfoundland and Labrador this season, the two whaling companies here report.

At Williamsport, the Olsen Whaling and Sealing Co., accounted for 135 whales, while the Polar Whaling Co., operating out of Hawke's Harbor, had a catch of 350.

Both figures are slightly below those of last year when the total catch was 544.

Although it is seldom in the spotlight, whaling is an important Newfoundland industry. For an average season the earnings of a whaling man are from $800 to $1,000.

ESKIMOS AND INDIANS SMILE

Far North Caribou Migration Also Good News For Traders

THE PAS, Man. (CP)—The great caribou migration in the far-north barren lands is under way. This year the Eskimo and Indian are smiling.

The great depletion of the herds which has occurred this century seems ended. Hunters and fur traders report the herds are bigger, and that more calves are travelling southward with the bulls and cows.

The caribou herds are one of the main food and clothing supplies of the Eskimo and the barren-land Chipewyan Indians. When the migration misses a native settlement, starvation and great hardships can and often does result.

The main migration is reported to be in the region between Iford and Herchmer, in a triangle west of the Hudson Bay Railway which turns sharply northward to Port Churchill after it crosses the Nelson River.

One main herd is reported to be traveling on a 30-mile front. Moving close to Kettle Rapids on the Nelson River, it is believed on the way to winter in the Split Lake area. That is half way between here and Churchill.

Pioneers predict it will return to the far-north barren next spring—probably about the end of March—on a roundabout, northwesterly trail through Brochet, on the Manitoba-Saskatchewan border.

Other herds are around the God's Lake, Oxford House and Shammattawa regions, east of the railway where Manitoba's eastern boundary jogs atop northwestern Ontario.

Fur trader Fred Kerr of The Pas says the migration trail of the barren-lands caribou can be followed for hundreds of miles through the snow. He says some caribou seem to be trickling across the railway near Iford, instead of swinging westward.

The southward trek of the larger bush caribou is reported to be 35 miles south of The Pas at one point.

LARGE MIGRATION

The migration this year, though larger than in recent seasons, is only a small fraction of the vast caribou migrations of a few decades ago. Some estimates have put the original size of the herds at 30,000,000. Old-timers claimed they would never be depleted like the buffalo.

But they were wrong. As traders swarmed into the north-land almost every native got a rifle. One trading post which supplied a handful of hunters sold 160,000 rounds of ammunition yearly.

And the caribou herds were decimated. In 1937, the animals were thought to number only 3,000,000.

Only a few government officials know exactly how many caribou there are today. Two years ago the federal resources

13 Lucky Guys

FRANK R. ADAMS

THE STORY: Before he was killed, along with Sergeant Eddie and other members of his squad in battle, Pfc. Carl Peterson had learned that his wife had been unfaithful. Now, after death, Carl, Eddie and others of the squad find themselves in their home town. Carl goes to his home, still angry at his unfaithful wife.

VIII

Carl got up and looked over her shoulder. In the drawer were a great many letters apparently all from himself. The ones on top were V-mail microfilm single sheets which he had sent from various overseas stations.

Kirsten scooped out the letters. All of them, and carried them into the living room. Carl followed her just in time to see her dump the lot into the fireplace.

"Kirsten!" Carl protested from the depths of a wounded heart. "Don't you want to keep any of them?"

She hesitated, almost as if she had heard him and bent over as if to take them back, but straightened up again resolutely with a gesture that put them and their writer out of her life forever. Her back was toward him so he did not see the expression on his wife's face as she fumbled for the box of matches which lay on the mantel. When she found it she stooped down once more and lit the papers.

ANOTHER NOTE

She remembered one more thing and went to get it. Carl, through the bedroom door, saw her take an envelope from the right hip-pocket of her overalls. She brought it back to the fireplace but before burning it she extracted the note which it contained and read it through.

So did Carl. It was not in his handwriting and he had to know.

"Listen, sister," it read, "just because I got introduced kind of rough it ain't no reason why we shouldn't never have any more fun. After all what are we living for? I admit I was higher than a kite that night I drove you home from the shop. Still the only thing I'm sorry about is I haven't seen you again since. How about it, baby? I ain't got a date for tonight. Have you?"

"Just so you'll know who you can't forget I am sending along a snapshot I had took not long ago. What's Clark Gable got that I ain't got?—Max."

The enclosed picture was of a stocky, self-consciously handsome young man in sport clothes, nice hair, close set eyes and a mouth with a mannequin smile on it. He was a determined looking character and if his photograph did not lie he would probably never suffer from blindness to his own interests. Perhaps Carl was prejudiced.

Certainly he was blinded by the fury which shook him. If there is any more nauseating poison than to gaze upon the face of a man who has usurped your place with the woman you love, hell has not yet released it for humanity to taste.

Carl's fury climbed over the bulwarks of his inherent phlegm. He wanted to be face to face with the original of that photograph.

Because his emotions translated themselves into action more rapidly than if he had been dependent on mere physical means of expression he was outside of the house and on his way while Kirsten was still standing before the fireplace with the letter and the photograph in her hand.

Carl did not therefore see the expression of ineffable disgust on his wife's features. Neither did he see her drop the papers on top of the still smoldering letters from himself.

No one, no one at all, saw the lovely, capable, sweetly womanly Kirsten as she finally stuffed old newspapers up the fireplace flue, closed and locked all the windows, placed rugs in front of the front and back doors and went out to the gas stove in the kitchen.

She turned on all the burners, oven, broiler and everything. After that Kirsten began to dress herself carefully in the nicest clothes she owned—that last pair of nylons, the silken lingerie that she had been married in. She took a great deal of care in the selection of her apparel just as if she had all the time there was.

Private Peterson was not at first aware of any reason why he should next have found himself back on the Lake Michigan beach with the rest of his squad. The men were gathered in a ragged group around a focus of activity which seemed to be on the sand.

"What goes on?" Carl asked as he edged his way in.

"It's that girl," explained Jake Snyder. "She almost got drowned. Then this big guy come along and he's undrowning her."

Carl was near enough now to observe the workings of the resuscitation treatment. He was interested but not particularly until the man happened to turn his head to look over his shoulder as he spoke to Duke.

Then Carl knew instantly why he was there. The man was Max! The only person in all the world even in Tokyo, whom Carl really hated.

Carl started toward Max. "Stand up, you! My name's Peterson and you can guess what I'm going to do to you."

Carl had counted without Eddie. Eddie blocked him off. Eddie was a good blocker, a lot of man and muscle. "Let him alone."

"But, Eddie," argued Carl, "this is the louse who—"
"Never mind who he is. Right now let him be. You heard me?"
Maybe Carl heard him but he certainly paid no attention. The moment Eddie's grip relaxed Carl lunged forward.
Eddie had to shove him out of the way this time. A good hard shove. It put Carl back on his rumbly seat there in the sand with a resounding thump.

Liz Scott Gets Lots Of Color Doing Her First Horse Opera

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—Lizbeth Scott is ditching the black-lace-nightgown set for a rifle, buckskins, Alan Ladd and a bottle of iodine in her first western, "Quantrell's Raiders." She bared a shapely knee and pointed to an iodine-soaked bandage:

"Look, bruises. I have some others. I wish I could show you all of them."

Even when the going got rough on a location trip to Gallup, N.M., Liz, the only girl in the company, was smiling. Girl and Ladd whispered it about: "Liz likes it. She must be cracking up."

Hollywood thought Liz was cracking up last summer when she ducked a chance to do "Summer and Smoke" in eastern stock and took a six-week course in philosophy, psychology and political economics at U.S.C.

"It wasn't strange at all," she told me. "I suddenly decided I wanted to do something for my mind instead of my bank account."

M-G-M is boiling. An earlier version of "King Solomon's Mines," made years ago by Gaumont-British with Cedric Hardwicke, Anna Lee and John Loder, is being booked by small film houses and advertised as "The Original."

Jeff Chandler reports for active army duty after he does "The Iron Man" at U.I. . . . John Garfield's future movie plans include a comedy, "Mr. Brooklyn," the story of a streetcar conductor who loses his car.

WANDA WHAT SHE'LL DO?

Wanda Hendrix couldn't get the playwright of the Broadway show she was slated for to make changes in the script, so her name won't be twinkling from the marquee as a junior Katharine Cornell. Sacharine movie roles and romance rumors are annoying Wanda, who complained:

"Why are people trying to get me married off? Just the other day there was a report that I was going to marry Bob Sterling. Why, I had only one date with him."

"Born Yesterday" proves that Columbia's Harry Cohn, who paid a hefty sum for the play, wasn't! The film translation of the stage hit emerges as a moving, fresh-faced companion piece to "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" and "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington."

Judy Holliday's movie-down comedy talents have the force of a bazooka.

VANCOUVER, B.C.—British Columbia may secure some lumber contracts for British shipbuilding as a result of yesterday's request by the British Admiralty to the Treasury.

HOLLYWOOD REVIEW

Stage Presents Challenge For Film Actor Bendix

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Some folks around town are wondering why William Bendix is playing before local footlights.

It's not that Bill needs the money. His stage pay is a pittance compared to the money he gets from the movies. Certainly the novelty of the play didn't do it. He is performing in "Born Yesterday," which Paul Douglas established on Broadway and which Broderick Crawford recently played in the movie version. (In fact, the film was previewed the night before Bendix opened on it.)

So I asked him why his leaning to the left.

"It presents a challenge," he confessed. "I haven't been on the stage since 11 years ago, when I was in 'Time of Your Life.' You forget a lot in that time."

ACADEMICAL

The academy faces another dilemma this year: What to do about George Sanders? The Briton is getting raves for his work in "All About Eve" and will undoubtedly be up for academy contention. But what category will he be in—star or supporting player?

He is given star billing in the picture but some might argue that his role supports Anne Baxter and Bette Davis. (Also, he might have a better chance of winning in the supporting race, which is less hotly contested.)

Sara Allen Sues Mae West

NEW YORK (AP)—Actress Sara Allen has slapped a $1,000,000 damage suit against Mae West, complaining the "come up and see me sometime" girl had just about ruined her career.

She charged in verse that Miss West slandered her and kept her from getting stage jobs because she did such excellent impersonations of the star of "Diamond Lil."

The damage action was filed by Miss Allen's lawyer, Harry H. Lipsig, whose affidavit asked the State Supreme Court:

"Can Sara's spinal modulations 'Be subject to West's regulations?"

"For buxum Mae now makes the claim

"Of introducing sex to fame, 'That bumps and grinds were never known

"Till in her act they first were shown."

CLAIMS SOCCER POOLS TOO BIG

LEICESTER, Eng. (Reuters)—George Needham, a mechanic won £96,000 (about $280,000) in a soccer pool complained today that it is too much.

"Pool wins should be limited to £200," he said.

"To be earning £7 a week and then suddenly find you've enough to live on for the rest of your life is too much for anyone to keep calm about."

Burgess Bedtime Story

By THORNTON W. BURGESS
Who keeps his head in time of stress
Will crown his efforts with success.
—Old Mother Nature.

It is in times of stress that a good leader is needed and that a leader proves himself. Pilot, leader of a school of small Whales called Pilot Whales because of their habit of following a leader or pilot, and more often mis-called Blackfish although there isn't a drop of fish blood in them, was proving himself now.

Graywing the Gull and a lot of his friends saw it. So did Barker the Seal. It was one of the most exciting events any of them ever had seen, so exciting that some of those Gulls almost lost their voices from screaming. They all thought that Pilot was crazy. Even Graywing, who had known Pilot for a long, long time, was inclined to think so. You see everybody thought Pilot had led his followers into a trap. Even his followers who had trusted him blindly, following without question where he led, thought so. And because they thought so they were more frightened than ever. They were the crazy ones, crazy with fright.

The Terrible One, the Killer Whale, most feared of all who swim the ocean, had appeared. Pilot had at once led the way into a lonely harbor, the Terrible One following. For a time it looked as if Pilot was so frightened that he didn't know what he was about or where he was going, for he was headed straight for the shore, and no Whale can live on land.

But things are not always as they seem. Pilot knew exactly what he was doing, where he was going. There was a long island separated from the mainland by a fairly deep winding channel. Into this channel Pilot turned. He had been there once before a long time ago when he was smaller than he was now. The water had been deep enough for him then. Was it deep enough now that he was so much bigger? And when he had been there before the tide had been higher. Of course, that meant more water. Now it was not only lower but was still going out, getting still lower. They couldn't wait for the tide to turn for the Terrible One was already in the harbor. There could be no turning back.

So Pilot did not hesitate. He turned into that channel behind the island. In the middle the water was deep enough, but only in the middle. It was deep enough for him and of course for all his followers for none was bigger than he. But it wasn't deep enough for the Terrible One.

So Pilot wisely slowed down. He swam as fast as he could and be sure of keeping in the channel and not going aground, but no faster. To get stranded would be as bad as being caught by the Terrible One. So Pilot hurried carefully which is, of course, the only way to hurry.

Not so some of those behind him, especially the younger Whales. They were so frightened by the danger behind them that all they could think of was swimming as fast as they could. When Pilot led the way in behind that island they plunged in after him with no thought of anything but the Terrible One behind them.

So in no time at all one of them was in trouble. He had left the channel and gone aground. Yes, sir, he had run aground on a mud flat. He had been frightened before, but it was nothing to his fright now. Never before in his life had he been unable to swim. Never had he had the awful feeling of helplessness that was his now.

Of course he struggled with all his might. Even a small Whale is so big that he has a lot of might. His great tail thrashed and beat the water into white foam and sometimes came down on the water so hard that the sound of it was like a gun and could be heard for a long distance. It was a sight to see! No wonder Graywing and his friends screamed themselves hoarse with excitement. I guess you and I would have done the same.

Disagree On Shares Of Hospital Expense

PORT ALBERNI—Alberni and Port Alberni councils have not yet agreed on their respective contributions toward construction of the West Coast General Hospital here.

In 1948, through by-law, Port Alberni provided $75,000, and Alberni $25,000. Of the remaining $181,130 required, Port Alberni council feels its sister city should pay a larger proportionate share.

Racing Fans Picket

CORDOBA, Argentina (Reuter)—Racetrack bettors here, angry at a bad start in a race, advanced on the totalisator but were prevented from breaking the place up by a strong force of police armed with tear gas. So they formed a picket line around the mutual windows and prevented people from placing bets on the remaining races.

PORT ALBERNI—A fisherman who died Saturday morning aboard his troller, the Lucky Chris, has been identified by R.C.

Reserve Judgment In Exchange Case

MONTREAL (CP)—Judgment was reserved today in the court of King's Bench criminal appeal division on a prosecution request that Vernon G. Cardy, retired hotel owner, be given a heavier fine for violation of foreign exchange control board regulations. Cardy was fined $40,000 last March after he pleaded guilty to violating F.E.C.B. regulations to the extent of $200,000.

MODERN ESCALATORS MAKE SHOPPING EASY AT THE BAY

By ART STOTT

When you talk to Walter Luney, you get the idea he's never heard that phrase "too old at forty." If he has, he's laughed at it. At 70, Walter figures work's his hobby. Without it, he thinks he wouldn't be around long. He takes it easier now than he used to. He's got his contracting business arranged so that authority is shared with others. But he still gets around to the jobs, sees how they're progressing, cusses when they're lagging and calls the workmen by their first names.

Walter enjoys blowing into a saxophone. He likes traveling around with the Shrine Band. He gets his share of pleasure from trips and vacations, and he gardens a bit and chops smaller wood. "I get a little short of wind," he admits as he tells you about a bunch of oak knots in his backyard that need splitting. Then he explains: "I got another fella to do that. He's in better shape than me. He's four years older too."

AT THIS STAGE in life, Luney doesn't have to worry about security. He works because he wants to. It's a habit he started when he was 13 and hasn't broken yet. He has his share of outside interests—they included a stint on the City Council for several years—but when he has a long weekend, he grows bored.

If you've made a study of the constructive use of leisure, you might worry about Walter. He wouldn't mind you worrying, but he hasn't time. Now, as a side-line, he's watching to see how the recommendations of the world's biggest firm of efficiency engineers are going to work out following its survey of his business. "Cost a lot of money," he'll tell you, "but they have good ideas."

IF YOU'RE NOT in a hurry, he'll invite you down to the library to see how work's going there. As you walk through the main door, Walter will draw your attention to the small tiles at the entrance. "I laid those nearly 50 years ago when I was working for George Snider," he says.

The new section, that makes you wonder how the library existed in its former quarters, is about as untidy as any library this side of bomb-damaged Europe. It's draughty, too. The big windows gape open. They've been one of the causes of delay. The firm that was given the contract met specification for steel frames. The steel for those frames comes from Belgium and there's been a little bit of war-anxiety over steel in that country. The problem's pretty well solved now, and the plasterers should be able to forge ahead.

THEY HAVE ONE other difficulty. It's not worth starting to plaster the upper floors until the roof is waterproof. The building looks rugged in its present shape, but Luney expects it to be finished in March. The way he says it, he's inclined to believe it will be. The way he goes over a project inclines you to believe, too, that Walter Luney isn't going to die from ennui.

IF YOU WATCH people on our downtown sidewalks, you begin to wonder if sauntering is one of the graces Victorians have retained from the past. They seem to have time to give acquaintances more than a passing nod. They don't seem driven by some overwhelming urge to get some place in a hurry. There's a leisureliness to them, as if they realized life is something more than the sharp pursuit of a fast dollar.

Maybe it's an old-fashioned way of going about things. Maybe it isn't the fast-paced gait of a 1950 city. Still, when you're not on the run, you have a better chance of tasting the flavor of living, than you have if you take it in gulps while you're rushing along to what materialists consider a better living.

THE OLD BUILDING at the southwest corner of Douglas and Courtenay, where the cuisine in recent years had an engaging continental tang, was built back in the 80's, they tell me, for the Indian Department. As it passes from the scene, the thought occurs that it may not be very long before Indian affairs cease to be Indian affairs, and the descendants of these people who were here before us are given, and accept, full and complete status as Canadians. A lot of people think that move is overdue.

Understudies In Ice Cycles As War Draft Calls

The world situation is making its effect felt on the Ice Cycles. The famous and fabulous ice show rolled into town Wednesday night, complete with its cast of 100 skaters, plus musicians, electricians, stagehands, wardrobe women and other folks who attend to the myriad of behind-the-scenes tasks which go into the two-and-a-half-hour spectacle.

But Jim Harkins, genial manager, has added headaches this year.

Seems in order to be a top skater, A-1 physical condition is a must. The United States army is fond of the same category of male.

NOT AS FUSSY

But the latter organization is not as fussy as the former about who it takes in, or when.

Result: At various points along the nation-wide trek of the ice show, performers are plucked out of their colorful costumes and flashing blades and plunked into a khaki suit.

Already one boy has left for the army. Comedian Howard Sullivan will be on his way after Saturday evening's show, and a number of others are not too far away from the draft.

Included are two British Columbians who, because of their job with the U.S. show, are eligible for Uncle Sam's forces—precision skater Marshall Garrett of the Garrett and Murphy team, and Ron Vincent. Marshall is from Vernon and Ron is a Vancouverite.

There are understudies ready to fill the breaches, but as a precautionary measure the troupe soon will order duplicate costumes in girls' sizes. In the last war, girls took over the men's acts.

Even now Manager Harkins is hiring extra girls, which should be a bright note for the local aspirants who turn out for auditions at the Memorial Arena Monday afternoon.

Toastmasters Meet

With 24 members present the weekly meeting of the Camosun Toastmasters' Club was held Wednesday night. Archie Gillies was toastmaster and W. Thorpe, topic master, Reg. Edwards was inducted as a member. Negative side was voted the winner in a debate on "Resolved that our educational system fulfills the needs of the present generation."

TO STOP INFLATION

Reasonable Attitude Needed—Hutchison

Price controls during the last war only postponed the effects of inflation, which the country now feels, Bruce Hutchison, Victoria Times columnist, told Victoria Rotary Club at the Empress Hotel today.

"Price controls did not stop inflation," he said, "and price controls instituted now would have the same effect."

Apart from a condition of total war, he said, inflation can be stopped if the public will recognize the following conditions: that there will be fewer consumer goods and that the present living standard must go down; that governments must pay bills through taxes, and not by "counterfeiting" extra money by borrowing from the banks; and that federal, provincial and municipal governments economize on non-defence expenditures.

ON BEING REASONABLE

The inflation problem can be defeated by these methods only if the public allows the government to use them, Mr. Hutchison pointed out. Their success, he said, depends upon businessmen being reasonable regarding their profits, unions being reasonable regarding wage demands, and the consumer controlling his demand for goods, supply of which would be lower because of rearmament.

"I would like to point out, however, that these suggestions could be made obsolete overnight by a change in the international situation," Mr. Hutchison said.

He said that ignoring of these conditions on the part of the people would result in worse confusion, and eventually a totally controlled state, which America is now fighting.

TO THE 50c DOLLAR

Mr. Hutchison traced the course of inflation during the war, and its ultimate arrival at the "fifty-cent dollar."

In war time, he said, the government applied punishing taxes, borrowed the people's savings, and even enforced saving, and invoked price ceilings.

Although magnificently administered, he said, if the war had gone on another year they would have collapsed because of internal pressures upon them.

Because taxes were insufficient, he said, money was borrowed from the banks, which created new credit out of "thin air."

Then, after the war, the vast pressure of extra money asserted itself, and the supply of money and goods equated themselves, "as always," Mr. Hutchison said, and a new high price level and low-value dollar was the result.

Vancouver Girl Loves Job As Ice Cycles Secretary

Life in a Vancouver office was comparatively dull for pert, blonde Rietta Bailey last January.

So when the Ice Cycles advertised for a secretary, she was one of 500 young ladies who besieged the show's manager, Jim Harkins.

And she got the job. Since then she has traveled thousands of miles, seen Paris, Amsterdam, London and other parts of Britain, plus a great deal of Canada and the United States.

When she arrived here Wednesday night with the ice extravaganza, Rietta admitted it was good to see Canada's west coast again—and she is looking forward to the next stop—Vancouver, where she lived for three years after coming from Winnipeg.

HITS PARKED CAR

City police said medium damage was done to both vehicles when a car driven by Leland M. Abbott, Royal Oak, was in collision with a parked car owned by Robert N. Burrows, 1148 Yates, on Yates near Quadra at 2:10 this morning.

Case of John Hutchinson, charged with being intoxicated while in control of a car, was remanded to Dec. 6. Adjournment was made necessary because defence counsel W. H. M. Haldane is ill, court was told.

Plea of guilty was entered by Frederick Roy Baker, 18, to stealing a car owned by John V. Weston Co. Ltd. He was picked up by R.C.M.P. officer Jack F. Austin as a result of a police radio alert to be on the lookout for a stolen car. Baker was remanded to Dec. 6 for sentence. Probation officer's report on him was asked.

Leonard T. Williamson, 1409 Taunton Street, was fined a total of $85 Wednesday on charges of careless driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident. He struck a parked car on Beachwood.

3 Stores Entered By Night Thieves

Cash, Batteries, Christmas Cake Among Haul In Series Of Burglaries

City detectives today were investigating a series of burglaries during the night in which cash, car batteries, cigarettes and chocolates were stolen.

There were three cases of shopbreaking, also one attempted entry of a home where the culprit was scared off by a Doberman Pinscher watchdog.

Teen-agers are believed to be responsible for two of the break-ins.

Leslie H. Coulter of the Hub Barber Shop, Yates Street, said $100 was stolen by the thief who entered the premises by the front-door transom.

From the Shell Oil station operated by G. R. Wells at 326 Bay Street, $46 was stolen from the cash register. A window was broken at the rear to gain entry.

A three-pound Christmas cake, four pounds of chocolates and 500 cigarettes were stolen from the store owned by A. S. Haywood, 810 Catherine Street. Front window was broken to gain entry.

Two batteries were stolen from trucks owned by the Atom Lumber Co., 210 Johnson Street, O. W. Backman told police. Trucks were parked in the lumber yard.

The burglar who was trying to enter the home of W. M. Maynard, 1630 Chandler Street, beat a hasty retreat when the noise he was making jimmied open a window disturbed the Doberman.

Police are also investigating a theft from Adrin Delouche, 865 Heywood Avenue, believed to be linked with a previous theft from St. Ann's Academy.

Police were told by Marcel Bourdin, 966 Heywood, that about Nov. 1 his daughter, 17-year-old Yvette, had her wallet stolen from her coat in the hallway of the academy.

The wallet contained $7 and a key to the house, which was used to enter the house.

Delouche reported $70 taken from the breast pocket of a coat left hanging behind the bedroom door. The thief left $35 of the roll. The house door has been found open several times since the key was stolen.

Embargo Lifted On Poultry From Alberta

The Newcastle disease embargo on importing poultry from Alberta and the U.S. has been lifted.

Action was taken at a special meeting of the provincial cabinet which reported today the Alberta government is also lifting restrictions on importation from B.C.

A government spokesman said removal of the embargo was the result of marked improvement in this province as well as in Alberta in the Newcastle disease epidemic.

Another factor also was a proposed change in the method of coping with the disease.

Up to now poultry flocks in which the disease has broken out have been slaughtered and the farmer paid compensation for the loss.

It is intended now to abandon the killing of entire flocks and fight the disease instead through use of vaccine.

Woman Hit By Truck In Hospital

SHOPPING GUIDE

Mabel Hears Of Adventures Of Dollar-Conscious Penny

By PENNY SAVER

Shiver mah 5-foot, 8-inch timbers, if dear friend Mabel didn't see Tuesday's column on articles for $1, or less. Says she, "Pen, my friend, had no idea there were such things as gifts for a dollar much less, 50 cents!"

Well, I told Mabel to stick around a few minutes, I'd open a bottle of glue and tell her of today's findings. From then on, she was all ears... but then, she always has been!

First, I told of the items to be found in children's shops or departments. For instance, the educational blocks... 12 of them in a set... in wooden or plastic forms, $1. The plastic ones are more like cups than blocks, as they fit into each other to form a pyramid. All colors and easily washed.

For 69 pennies there is a set of educational blocks, hammer, blue w/ side fastening, 89 cents; plastic snap-ons, $1; snap-on diapers, soft flannelette, 55 cents; plain or flowered panties for little misses and children, 49 cents and up.

Bibs to tuck under the wee one's chubby chins are offered in plastic affairs with sleeves, bibs and "trough" to catch dribbles and food, all for 89 cents; one store has a special pen to write the youngster's name on plastic aprons or bibs... won't rub off, they tell me. For the very tiny baby there are embroidered and lace-edged dainty darlings, for 79 cents, hand crocheted, same price; terry cloth type, tubbale as the day is long, 29 cents, up.

Pastel pink and blue brush and comb sets, 98 cents. Brushes sport nylon bristles, by the way. Knitted mitts, 89 cents; washable tufted woolen shoes, pink, blue or white, $1 a pair.

The above items are but a few that I found, good friend, and by the end of a few more articles, hope to have you embarked on your Christmas shopping spree.

Store coconut in covered jar in refrigerator. To soften, warm over hot water.

nails and work board, or modeling clay set in assorted colors, 39 cents.

Eating equipment offers a saucy duck egg cup, great flat feet and all, with matching porridge or soup dish, 79 pennies a set, in blue and pink; flower-trimmed plastic mugs, 25 cents, plastic spoons, a nickel.

What the well-dressed bambino and bambina is wearing for a dollar includes silk jersey rubber-lined panties, white, pink and

YOUR BABY AND MINE

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

It's always a surprise when sometime between the baby's fourth and twelfth month the mother discovers a tooth or feels it click against the edge of the cup. There they are; two tiny, jagged white lines embedded in the pink gums. To give them their right names the first two teeth cut are the lower central incisors.

Within a matter of a week or two, the two upper central incisors will be cut and then by the twelfth month, usually the two upper lateral incisors. That makes up the set of six teeth which most babies have by their first birthday.

Once the teeth begin to come in, they appear regularly, though there may be a delay after the initial eight teeth are cut until the baby gets his first four molars. They do not show up right next to the lateral incisors, there is a space between them which will eventually be filled by the canines, so called stomach and eye teeth.

When all of these are in, the baby will have a full set of twenty "milk" teeth consisting of eight incisors, eight molars and four canines. Will he suffer when he gets those teeth? If his mother has had a good diet before birth; if the baby has had a wholesome diet plus the necessary vitamins, the probability is great that the first incisors will come in without the least symptom of discomfort.

But most children show some lack of appetite, some inability to sleep and a general crossness when the molars and canines are being cut, which would indicate that there is some soreness of gums.

In fact, when a baby cutting teeth bites unexpectedly on some hard object he is apt to cry out as if hurt. Fortunately, the uncomfortable part of teething is of short duration. And don't think that everytime a child is cross or sleepless or without appetite, teeth are at fault. The child is teething pretty much during the first 30 to 36 months.

Our leaflet No. 39, "Teeth," gives more information on this subject. It may be had by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

TODAY'S RECIPE

EASY FRUIT CAKE

Even if you haven't baked much before, you too can make a fruit cake for Christmas, with a new, improved recipe. Using packaged cake mix, packaged, pre-cut glace fruits, prepared frozen or canned orange juice, shelled nuts, and seedless raisins to do away with the traditionally lengthy preparation of ingredients for fruit cake. The recipe is almost failure-proof, too, because the basic cake mixture is already prepared.

Here's how it's done:

The ingredients: One package of prepared white cake mix—any kind, 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon nutmeg, 1/2 teaspoon mace, 1/2 teaspoon cloves, 1 cup orange juice, 1/2 pound blanched almonds, or broken walnuts, 2 cups seedless raisins light or dark, 1 pound diced mixed glace fruits, 1/2 cup flour.

The method: Pour the contents of a package of cake mix into a large bowl. Add spices to the dry mix and stir to blend. Follow the directions on the package for adding liquid, substituting orange juice for milk or water. If the cake mix calls for eggs, add as directed on the package. Combine fruits and nuts on a large piece of waxed paper. Add flour and toss until all the pieces are lightly coated. Add to cake batter. Turn into a nine-inch spring tube pan (or two bread loaf pans) that have been greased, lined on the bottom with heavy waxed paper and then greased again.

Baked slowly in 300 degree oven for one hour and 45 minutes. Loosen around the edges, let it stand until cool, and then remove from the pan.

Presentation—Mrs. R. Maxwell, long standing member of Catholic Women's League, Salt Spring Island, who is leaving to make her home at Ladner, was presented with an electric kettle and corsage bouquet of pink roses, at a recent meeting of the League. Mrs. Leon King presented the gifts on behalf of members. Another presentation was that of a cup and saucer and a corsage bouquet made by Mrs. G. St. Denis to Mrs. H. Sjoquist who has now left to make her home in Vancouver.

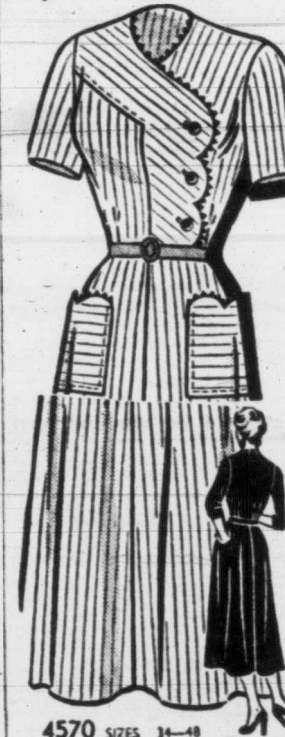

Mrs. R. Britton was in the chair and final arrangements were made for the annual 500 party. Afternoon tea was served by the hostess Mrs. W. Jameski at whose home in the Cranberry, the meeting was held. She was assisted by Mrs. W. Harris.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Married 18 Years, Woman Now Jealous Of Husband's Golf Craze.

Dear Mary Haworth: Did you ever hear of anyone being jealous of a golf ball? Well, I am; and in talking with other wives, I find they feel the same. My husband is golf-crazy. He isn't satisfied with playing on the course. He has a putting cup in the living-room which he uses for practice every night. Then he has to go down to the rear courtyard to take some practice swings. At times I get so mad I could hit him with one of the clubs.

We aren't just newlyweds. We have been married 18 years and have two sons, now 17 and 15 years of age. The older boy is getting to be a golf addict, too. I like to play and once played fairly well; but every time I went out with Henry, I was lectured about every swing I took. He plays in the low eighties, and as for me, I played just to play; but he acts like his life depends on his game.

Mary Haworth

On Saturdays and Sundays when a person could sleep, Henry is up at 5:30 a.m. so he can go and sign up for his turn at the course. Then he brings some of his fellow golf-nuts back for breakfast, and I wish you could see him preparing their breakfast and waiting on them happily—when he wouldn't even make a cup of coffee for me, much less cook eggs.

When I have a date to meet him anywhere and he says, "I'll see you at 5 o'clock," I still have to wait for him even if I don't arrive until 6 o'clock. But when he says 6 o'clock for golf, he is there a few minutes ahead of time.

Everything we buy or do we discuss openly; but he joined a golf club some time back, and I didn't know anything about it until he started getting mail from it. I don't think he would lie to me about anything except golf, and it burns me up. Please give me your opinions on the situation. We read you every day. —K. P.

MAN AND WIFE ARE MUCH ALIKE

Dear K. P.: It appears that Henry has an obsessional type of character; but so have you. He has fixed on golf as a means of channeling his obsessional tension into a gregarious activity that affords patchwork respite from urgent unconscious anxieties.

This is certainly not to say that all persons who enjoy golf, or who pursue it as their favorite pastime, are manifesting obsessional traits. But when a golfer carries "interest in the game" to Henry's extreme—nightly using the parlor as a putting green and the building lot as a practice range, and rising at cockcrow on days of rest the year round to play before breakfast, and paying more court to fellow golfers than to his wife—then obviously he is "running from something" in his experience. And the question is: What?

At this point in your jealous feud with Henry's golfing, he is probably running away from your proprietary nagging, as much as anything; when he concentrates on his game, early and late. He is physically in flight from your emotionally exhausting demands when he goes to the links. And he is psychologically withdrawn, when he gives his clubs a regular workout around home, in defiance of your disapproval. Also his attitude and intent are rejecting.

IN LONDON

Queen Helps Make Black Favored Color Of Season

LONDON (Reuter) — The Parisienne's favorite black is fast becoming the "smart" fashion in London, too.

Queen Elizabeth helped it on its way when she appeared in black at a number of functions during the fortnight's court mourning for King Gustav of Sweden.

The first appearance of the Queen in black—a rich velvet evening gown—instead of her usual pastel shades drew admiration from all who saw her. Subsequent appearances at day-time functions served to increase the general opinion that "black really suits her."

London's West End shops were quick to seize the cue. Black gowns for evening wear, and black suits and dresses for the daytime are today the feature of window displays in the city's smartest streets—Bond Street, Regent Street and Oxford Street.

Black predominated also at two Paris mid-season dress collections, by Paquin and Alwynn.

The second of these shows also made fashion history. For the first time, Londoners saw a collection by a top Paris designer before it had been publicly shown in Paris. Little more than 24 hours after its private showing to the press in Paris, Alwynn's 1950-51 collection was given its world premiere to a London audience.

Alwynn, 24, is the youngest member of Paris' leading group of couturiers and enjoys the reputation of being "the Dior of the younger set."

PUPILS' AMBITIONS

YORKTON, Sask (CP)—Grade five pupils in Burke School here were asked what they would most like to become.

None of the children took it very seriously—but all 37 pupils agreed that they didn't want to teach school.

One little girl said she wanted to be a duck floating in cold water. Another wanted to be a beauty "so everyone would look at me."

A boy said he'd like to be "a cowboy holding up stage-coaches," and another pupil wanted to be "a beautiful jewel."

VESTRY CEREMONY

Blaney-Lusse Wedding In Presbyterian Church

In a ceremony performed by Rev. J. L. W. McLean in the vestry of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Diane Georgina, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Lusse, Lee Avenue, became the bride of Frederick Donald Blaney, son of Mrs. S. R. Blaney, and the late Mr. Blaney, Earle Street.

The bride wore a white satin gown. A net yoke of seed pearls enhanced a V-shaped bodice and the full skirt ended in a train. A full-length veil fashioned of silk illusion net was held by a coronet headress set with seed pearls. Pearl necklace and matching earrings, gift of the groom completed the ensemble. Her cascade bouquet of red roses was tied with white satin ribbon.

Mrs. K. Causland, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a gown of yellow organza complemented with a flower head dress and elbow-length gloves. The bridesmaid, Miss Violet Tront, was in blue satin with net overskirt.

Ernest Blaney was his brother's best man.

Wedding march played by Mrs. G. Margison, greeted the bridal party as they entered the reception hall at 1012 Douglas Street, where over 100 guests were received by Mrs. J. Lusse, mother of the bride, and Mrs. S. R. Blaney, mother of the groom.

Large baskets of chrysanthemums flanked the fireplace where the bridal party stood. Toast was proposed by Hector Lusse, uncle of the bride. A three-tiered wedding cake made by Mrs. E. Speed, aunt of the bride, centred the lace covered bride's table. Pink tapers in silver holders, and pink carnations at either end of the table, completed the

Girl Guide Scroll Of Friendship Reaches Ottawa, Here In December

OTTAWA (CP)—A small uniformed welcoming committee was on hand at Uplands airport today—and this time the occasion wasn't to be the arrival of a visiting dignitary.

Instead, the group, composed of girl guide heads in the area, received a hand-painted illuminated Scroll of Friendship.

The Scroll, which carries the greetings of British guides to the guides of each of 28 member countries of the world association, has passed through the hands of guides and brownies throughout Eastern Canada.

Trans-Canada Air Lines has arranged that its stewardesses on each of the planes carrying the Scroll will act as custodians. They make the presentations to local girl guides and accept the Scroll for transport to the next stop.

After three days in the capital—including a visit to Government House—it will proceed to North Bay, Ont. From there it will be flown to Kapuskasing and Fort William, Ont., Winnipeg, Brandon, Regina, Saskatoon, Edmonton, Calgary, Vancouver and Victoria.

Eventually, when it has completed its trip, it will return to the Dominion headquarters of the Girl Guide Association in Toronto.

There are 73 pages in the log book of this message of friendship. Some are accompanied by pencil sketches, others by snapshots. But all hold true to that first rule of guiding "a guide is a friend to all and a sister to every other guide."

The very fact that ripe olives taste so good with sandwiches is sufficient reason that they be included in the school lunch box. What's more, they have outstanding mineral and vitamin values which makes them very important from a nutritional standpoint, too.

War Clouds Fail To Break Markets

By HARRY YOUNG, Times Business Editor

One of the surprises of this week's stock exchange response to the news from Korea has been the comparative vulnerability of shares which would appear to be most likely to increase operations and profit under complete war conditions.

These include steel, heavy manufacturing, base metals and oil. Some like Massey-Harris fell by nearly $10 from their top of $45, and who could say that Massey-Harris would not be kept 100 per cent employed by any further war developments. Consolidated Smelters were another to lose ground although increased in prices of base metals, together with growing shortages indicates that the great Trail firm is very nearly gilt edged in the circumstances.

Other shares of a more luxurious nature resisted the downward trend. The truth is that the market went down, not because of any deterioration in trading conditions, but purely because the bad news seemed the opportune moment for profit taking. It followed naturally that the shares which had been most active recently were most affected, and these of course were the steels, the base metals and other "heavies."

The wave hit the market during the trading session on Monday and the selling orders had not been cleared by the closure. The selling resumed on Tuesday, but once its back was broken, and the first flush of the nervousness had worn off, bargain hunters got to work, and took advantage of the shake out to get in on the lower prices.

The situation is still obscure, but it does not seem that prices will break to any serious degree unless it comes to a state of complete war. The economies of the bigger and well established companies are too sound to permit of any spectacular collapse on the 1929 basis.

Scottish engineering firms find that one of their most difficult problems in Canada is finding suitable agents to handle their goods. Their export drive has been hampered in this way, and at present the 13 Scottish firms who exhibited at the International Trade Fair at Toronto last May are forming two group selling companies staffed at the top from Britain.

These Scottish companies netted a million dollars worth of orders for products that ranged from baking machines to stainless steel, as a result of their participation in the fair.

The sequel to this success is the promise of an even bigger display at next year's fair.

Western Oils Given Quotas

CALGARY (CP)—New production quotas for Alberta oil wells based on first time on market conditions and costs as well as ability to produce, have been announced by the Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board.

Earlier this month, purchases of Alberta crude estimated needs for December at 81,855 barrels. Under previous conservation board quotas, based only on engineering factors, wells could produce twice that much.

The new system was implemented at the request of the oil industry. Quotas for individual wells in larger fields are: Redwater, 53 barrels daily; Leduc D-3, 53; Leduc D-2, 49; Leduc Lower Cretaceous, 45.

Under the previous system, Redwater wells were permitted to produce 165 barrels daily but purchasers were taking only 77; Leduc D-3 could produce 110 with buyers taking 77; Leduc D-2 could produce 70 with buyers taking 57, and Leduc Lower Cretaceous 50 with buyers taking 40.

Actual production was governed by the market. Producers selling to different purchasers claimed the system resulted in inequities.

The board's order also fixed quotas for 14 smaller producing areas but Turner Valley wells are not affected. Calgary refineries can already handle more than the declining field can produce under quotas based only on engineering factors.

No New Steel For Frivolities

OTTAWA (CP)—Trade Minister Howe this week-end will issue an order banning the sale of steel for amusement construction.

The order, effective Monday, Jan. 1, will have a threefold purpose:

1. To conserve steel supplies for defence construction needs.

2. To cut down on new building of theatres, bowling alleys and other non-essentials, as a means of curbing inflation.

3. To show the United States that Canada is doing as much as she can to save steel as called for under joint economic and defence planning.

Also on Jan. 1 Mr. Howe will withdraw emergency exchange import controls on capital goods. Finance Minister Abbott already has announced that all remaining emergency exchange controls on consumer goods will be lifted on that day.

The restrictive order on steel sales will apply on all steel produced by Canada's hard-pressed steel industry. However, it will not prevent a theatre or other amusement centre builders from using substitute materials or even steel if obtainable from disassembled buildings or some outside sources. Chances of getting steel, however, are slim.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—A firm undertone generally was produced with only the nearby months of oats and barley showing hesitation.

Commercial demand was up in oats and barley and export interest was noted in flax. Export wheat business reported included 300,000 to the United Kingdom and 50,000 to Bolivia. Arabia and Honduras also took small parcels.

Residents Unite To Repair Metchosin Community Hall

One of the outstanding community efforts made in this district has been the repairing of Metchosin Community Hall, at Happy Valley, Metchosin and Quarantine Roads.

A year ago floor beams of the hall, built 10 years ago, were weakened by dry rot and began to sag. But rather than call for tenders, members of the community decided to do the repair job themselves.

Timber for beams and foundations was donated, some logs were hauled from the beach at Parry Bay, and 8,400 cubic feet of clay were excavated by hand to make room for a furnace.

About $700 is needed to finish the job, and $200 is on hand. Required yet are 250 bags of cement, tile, brick, eavestrough and shiplap.

Nomination Papers Filed At City Hall

Two candidates, one for re-election and one for election, filed nomination papers at City Hall Wednesday to run for City Council.

They were Ald. Mrs. Hilda L. Baxter, 120 St. Andrews Street, who will run for one of five two-year terms, and William H. Williams, 2912 Quadra Street, who will seek election to the one-year vacancy.

Nominators for Mrs. Baxter were Hon. Nancy Hodges, 2019 Runnymede, and Dr. Olga M. Jardine, 1540 Despard Avenue. Former alderman Edward Williams, 1901 Fairfield Road, and David W. Burnett, 518 Fort Street, were nominators for Mr. Williams.

C. Luff, 2518 Empire Street, complained to City Council by letter Wednesday of the action of the parks committee in denying residents of the north-east Central Park district the use of the park.

For years, he said, people got through the fence at the corner of Queens and Vancouver as a shortcut to town, but now a wire fence has been installed. He suggested a gate or turnstile at the corner of Queens and Vancouver.
